NEW YORK STRIKERS ARE READY TO RETURN

Mahon Says Carmen Prepared to Go Back as Soon as R. R. Directors Ratify Agreement

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—A peaceful end of the strike on the New York Railway company's surface car lines which began Friday night was in prospect today. Meetings of the organization of the union men and of the board of directors of the railway company were called at 11 o'clock today to consider proposals of settlement which already had been approved by President Shonts of the company and by representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America. These proposals were described by Mayor Mitchell as a basis for settlement. Leaders of both sides of the controversy promised to recommend them for ratification by the directors of the company and by the strikers.

Demands Granted

The terms of proposed settlement were not made public in advance of their ratification, but it was reported Continued to page two

ELECTION OF SELECTMAN

Forrest F. Collier Will Contest Election of Prescott L. Pasho in Billerica

At a special election held in Billerica, Saturday, July 22, Prescott L. Pasho was declared elected selectman to fill the unexpired term of the late Josiah Wright. Forrest F. Collier was also a candidate for the office and will contest the election of Mr. Pasho. The following letter from Mr. Collier to Selectman Ralph E. Manning tells the story:

Aug. 5, 1916.

Ralph E. Manning, Esq., Selectman, Town of Billerica, 3 Lowell Street, North Billerica, Mass.

Dear Sir:—As a candidate for the office of selectman at a special election held on Saturday, July 22, 1916, to fill the unexpired term of Josiah Wright, deceased, I claim that I was elected to this office, and herewith contest the election of Prescott L. Pasho. I, therefore, demand a hearing before the surviving members of the board of selectmen, who were duly elected and qualified at the annual town meeting in 1915. I submit that the envelopes and ballots shall be subject to the order of said selectmen under the acts of 1913, chapter 335, section 381, and request that a speedy hearing be given, and that said envelopes and ballots shall be produced before said selectmen by the town clerk for the purpose of recounting said ballots and amending any record or copy thereof in relation to such office.

I further submit that one ballot which was enclosed in envelope marked No. 6 and which was counted as a blank should be counted in behalf of my election as such selectman, as the intention of the voter to vote for me was apparent upon the face of said ballot, and that another ballot enclosed in envelope marked No. 8 which was counted in behalf of the election of said Prescott L. Pasho should not have been counted in his behalf but should have been declared a blank, as the intention of the voter was not apparent upon the face of said ballot.

I further submit that there was not a proper board of registrars to make a proper and valid recount of the ballots voted at said election, inasmuch as Albert H. Richardson, Esq., acted as an election officer at said election. The acts of 1913, chapter 335, section 34, prescribe as follows: "The acceptance by a registrar of an office which he is prohibited from holding shall vacate his office as registrar." I submit under this section that a registrar cannot act as an election officer, and claim, therefore, that said election was improper and illegal.

Will you kindly arrange with Martin Conway, Esq., for a hearing in regard to this matter the early part of next week, and oblige.

Yours respectfully,

Forrest F. Collier.

Jennie McDonald Found Unconscious in South Street House

Jennie McDonald, aged about 20 years, was found unconscious in a house in South street, near Winter street, about six o'clock this morning. She was suffering from gas poison and was hurried to St. John's hospital but at the time of going to press this afternoon, she was still unconscious and her condition is very serious.

Inmates of the house in South street detected a strong odor of gas about six o'clock this morning and notifying Patrolman Boyle, the latter forced an entrance and found the woman unconscious on the floor.

Lookout Reports Two Submarines, One Considerably Smaller Than the Other Off Cross Island Guard Station—No U. S. Submarines in Vicinity

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—That there were two submarines off Cross Island coast guard station this morning, one of them considerably smaller than the other, is the story which Lowell W. Dunn, the lookout who sighted the craft told The Associated Press today.

"I was standing on the hill looking out to sea through my glasses," said Mr. Dunn, "and it was perfectly clear at the time, while the water was smooth. The first of the two submarines appeared from beneath the surface at about 5.30 o'clock and I should judge that her hull was ten or twelve feet out of water. Although she was at a distance of more than five miles off shore I could plainly make out what seemed to be a small tower in the middle of the vessel. I watched her for a few minutes and then shifting my glasses, I saw another smaller submarine a mile ahead of her. Both were bound to the westward. The vessel in the lead soon submerged and three or four minutes after I turned to take another look at the big one, she too, went below the surface. The submarines were travelling at the rate of 12 or 15 miles an hour.

"I am positive," continued Mr. Dunn, "that the vessels were submarines for the towers were plainly visible."

NOT U. S. SUBMARINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Navy officers said today "no American submarines were known to be anywhere in the vicinity of Cross Island. They thought the boat sighted there might be the German merchant submersible Deutschland on her homeward voyage or her sister ship, the Bremen, bound in for the United States."

HILKES INTERESTED

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—Henry G. Hilkes, senior member of the Eastern Forwarding Co., American agents of the German merchant submarines, read The Associated Press dispatch report of the sighting of a submarine off the Maine coast today with interest, but refused to comment on the possibility of the craft being the Bremen or any other German underwater boat.

HUGHES OPENS CAMPAIGN FAVOR A STRIKE

CONGRATULATES DETROIT MANUFACTURERS FOR WORK DONE FOR WELFARE OF EMPLOYEES

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, speaking today to forty manufacturers of Detroit and vicinity, employing nearly 100,000 men, congratulated them upon what they had done for the welfare of their employees, told them that the democracy of the United States would not stand for a continuation of "this alleged strife between capital and labor" and declared that the American workman should not be regarded as a mere economic unit, but as a "fellow worker, a human being."

Mr. Hughes' address followed a brief speech by J. M. Eaton, spokesman for the manufacturers, who outlined the welfare measures for employees taken by industrial concerns here and suggested that the nominees endorse a movement looking to the formation of a national welfare association of manufacturers.

Hughes said he regarded the suggestion very favorably.

A few minutes later Mr. Hughes spoke to a group of suffragists with his wife standing beside him.

Mr. Hughes reiterated in his address to the suffragists his declaration in New York that the suffrage question should be settled speedily by giving the vote to women all over the country. He added that he had formed this opinion long ago.

MAY BE BREMEN

It was thought that the vessel might be the German submarine Bremen. So far as can be learned there are no United States submarines off the Maine coast.

Capt. Small said that the submarine was sighted about five miles southeast of Cross Island, which lies close to the Maine coast. If the vessel was the Bremen she was either off her course or, for reasons best known to the master of the merchantman, had chosen to come in close to the enemy's country in order to arrive sooner within the three mile limit.

To be off Cross Island the submarine must have skirted the coast of Nova Scotia and rounded Sable Island; thence heading north along the edge of the Bay of Fundy instead of taking the more direct route across the Gulf of Maine to Bay Harbor or Portland.

The indicated course would bring her within the three mile limit soon after she was sighted, and from then on she would have plenty of water to permit her to keep within the neutral zone.

The lookout who sighted the submarine later said that as the vessel came to the surface the lookout said he heard several blasts from the signal.

THEIR ANNUAL OUTING

Grounds of St. John's School in Danvers Scene of Pleasant Gathering Yesterday

About 300 members of the alumni of St. Patrick's academy journeyed to St. John's preparatory school in Danvers yesterday where the annual outing was held on the beautiful grounds surrounding the institution. The weather was ideal for the ride to and from Danvers and also for the outdoor festivities.

The trip was made in four large automobile trucks and a number of pleasure machines. The start was made from in front of the school about 10 o'clock and the hour and a half or so that it took to cover the ground that separates Lowell from Danvers was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present. Merriment ran high and there was plenty of amusement for all.

Arriving at the grounds the various buildings were visited, including the new $150,000 fireproof building just Continued to last page

FURTHER ADVANCE FOR RUSSIANS IN GALICIA

Czar's Troops Capture Sereth and Graberka—Heavy Fighting—Turks Defeated at Suez

General Brusiloff is pressing his offensive against the Teutonic allies in northern Galicia where the passage of the river Sereth was forced recently by the Russians along a wide front south of Boudy. Petrograd today reports further advances for the Russians with the capture of strongly fortified positions along the Sereth and the Graberka.

The forward push of the Russians in this sector is not only bringing them closer to Lemberg on the direct line of advance, but it is pointed out by military critics as likely seriously to endanger the entire Austrian front along the Stripa, to the south, which is rapidly being outflanked.

Heavy Fighting at Verdun

Heavy fighting continues on the western front in the Verdun region. According to Paris, however, the Germans have been entirely unsuccessful in their efforts to regain ground lost to the French in Gen. Nivelle's offensive of last week. An attack on the Thiaumont work is declared to have been checked at the outset by the French fire barrier, while an assault in the Vaux-Champagne woods was broken up by the artillery and machine guns.

In the field of the allied offensive along the Somme today's Paris statement reports only artillery activity, which, however, was intense in the region of Chaumes, north of the river.

Defeat For Turks

British reports of the fighting east of the Suez canal in Egypt show a crushing defeat for the Turks who are said to have lost fully one-fourth of their effectives, which numbered some 14,000 men. The British took more than 3,000 prisoners.

They are pursuing the Turks who already have been driven 18 miles into the desert from the scene of the action.

In German East Africa

In German East Africa the British have driven the Germans beyond the central railway line, bisecting the possession, thus pressing them into a comparatively narrow area on the other side of which Portuguese forces from the neighboring colony of Portuguese East Africa are operating. London despatches report Premier Botha of the Union of South Africa on the scene in anticipation that the operation of depriving the Germans of their last remaining colonial possession will soon be completed.

British Front Along Somme

Regarding the operations on the British front in the Somme region, London announces that the lines in the Pozieres sector have been maintained in the face of continued counter attacks. Berlin today reports the recapture of sections of a trench near Pozieres temporarily held by the British. London admitted last night that German counter attacks yesterday had made inroads on the ground won by the British last week, but declared that all but about forty yards of one trench had been subsequently recovered by the British.

German Successes in Carpathians

The German influence upon the campaign in the Carpathians is reflected in the reports of the fighting in that region. Berlin today announces that German troops have won new successes there, capturing additional heights on the Chernomoh river.

Rout For Russians

Constantinople reports a rout for the Russians in the Mush sector in Turkish Armenia. Petrograd admits a Russian retirement for a short distance in this region.

GERMAN COUNTER ATTACKS EAST OF POZIERES LAST NIGHT WERE REPULSED

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Several small counter attacks by the Germans east of Pozieres last night were repulsed, the war office announced today.

The announcement says: "Hostile artillery bombardments continue between the Ancre and the Somme, both on the front line and back areas.

"The enemy made several small counter attacks east of Pozieres, all of which were repulsed with loss to the enemy. We retained the ground won yesterday."

RAPID PROGRESS FOR ALLIES IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA—BOTH A AT FRONT

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Gen. Louis Botha, premier of the Union of South Africa, has arrived in German East Africa to witness what is believed here to be the last phase of the operations against Germany's one remaining colony. Gen. Botha was present at the recent fighting north of the German central railway which resulted in a British advance to another occupation of the lines at Kilimatindo and other points.

Meanwhile, with the occupation of Ujiji by the Belgians and of Sadani and other coast ports by the British, the Germans apparently are afforded only the opportunity of retreating into the southeastern corner of the colony, where the Portuguese, in their East African possession, are awaiting them.

Rapid progress in the southward drive of the British through German East Africa is reported in an official statement issued today. The statement follows:

"General Smuts states that the minor port of Sadani, (on the Indian ocean) was occupied by our naval forces on Aug. 1, slight opposition only being experienced. Other naval operations are in progress at various points along the coast line.

"Having reached the German central railway at Kilimatindo, Dodoma and Kilombo, Lieut. Col. Vanlenter, pursuing the enemy forces, dislodged them from this area in the direction of Mpanza.

"A detachment operating in the direction of Sindida, west of Kondoa-Irangi, engaged with an enemy party which surrendered after stubborn resistance in a blockhouse."

STRIKERS SHOT

WORCESTER, Aug. 7.—Seven strikers at the mills of the Barre Casing Co. and the Norway Casing Co. were shot this afternoon in a riot that attended an attempt by mill managers to re-open the mill with strike-breakers. The mill had trouble with their employes the past three weeks and a party brought to town today to take their places. A riot followed and the special officers who are on duty to protect the mill properly felt called on to fire their revolvers into the rioters. It is reported that half a dozen people in the mob were shot and four were seriously wounded. One victim was taken to Worcester City hospital in a bad condition.

CAPTURED 100 GERMANS

CORP. GOUTAUBIER DECORATED WITH MILITARY CROSS BY PRES. POINCARÉ

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Corporal Goutaubier of the French light infantry has been decorated with a Military Cross by President Poincaré for capturing 100 Germans, including two officers, aided only by a single companion.

When Corporal Goutaubier was paraded before President Poincaré, on the recent visit of the latter to the front, he told the story of his feat.

It was on July 20, before Henwood, the French troops had just dashed forward at the German positions. The first wave had swept over the enemy's trenches and the second had followed to complete the operation. However, from a hollow toward the right a new sustained fusillade was being poured on the flank of the attackers.

Goutaubier, who was at the right wing of the second wave, called out to one man: "Guillot come with me."

The two men approached the spot whence the firing came. They eluded from tree to tree until they were close to the shelter where a German officer was holding out. Guillot threw bombs as fast as he could into their midst and the fire ceased.

"Surrender," shouted the corporal from behind a tree.

In response to his demand, 100 Germans emerged from the shelter with uplifted hands, led by a German officer. "Pass along this way," shouted Goutaubier from his hiding place. Two minutes later the 100 Germans, shepherded by the corporal and Guillot, arrived at the French lines.

The prisoners admitted that some of their comrades remained in the shelter. "Come on, Guillot, let us go and fetch them," said Goutaubier. The two men started back but Guillot fell with a bullet in his breast and the corporal had to abandon his enterprise.

NEW YORK STRIKERS

that the demands of the strikers for a wage scale of 30 to 33 cents an hour were granted, together with virtual but not official recognition of their union and an agreement to the men's demands that the future differences between them and the company should be submitted to arbitration by a committee representing the disputants. These supposed terms could not be verified owing to the intention of the officials concerned to keep them secret until approved or rejected.

The main contention of the conductors and motormen has been to organize without intimidation. Should a settlement of the strike affecting the New York City Subway Co. be brought about, it is generally believed that a similar agreement would be made with the strikers on the surface lines in Queens county. This agreement may also have an influence toward settling the strike on the Second and Third Avenue lines and the independent lines on Staten Island. Managers of the different surface car systems promised to provide an adequate service today after a virtual suspension last night.

After a virtual suspension last night, official police figures issued early in the day showed that 359 cars were in operation.

There was no suspension of precautionary measures against possible trouble, however, as one or two policemen rode on every car.

The strikers kept off the streets in the early hours and no disorders were reported.

Carmen Ratify Agreement

President Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees announced at the close of the employees' meeting that the tentative agreement had been ratified and that the men were ready to go back to work.

The agreement was also ratified by the directors of the New York City Subway Co. The latter at that time were still in session.

$1 A DAY EXTRA FOR 12,000

New York Subway and Elevated Employees Granted Increase for Extra Work

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—After a conference between Theodore J. Shonts and Frank J. Murphy, president and general manager respectively of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, it was announced that all employees of the Interborough, numbering approximately 12,000, will receive $1 per day extra pay until further notice, beginning yesterday.

Traffic in the subway and on the elevated railway lines, which are controlled by the Interborough, has been increased by the disturbed conditions on the surface roads as to put extra burdens on the Interborough employees, the announcement said, and for that reason the company decided the men were entitled to additional compensation.

Mr. Shonts, who also is general manager of the new York City Subway company, declared that "the return of a large number of former employees" had made it possible for the surface lines controlled by his company to provide 50 percent of its normal service yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA CARMEN STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—The strike of members of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway employees, was called by Harry E. Flynn, president of the local division, at 3:30 this morning, but apparently there was no change in the running schedule of the lines of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., which operates the street railways.

Flynn issued a statement saying 1500 of the 4000 employees of the company had responded to the strike order and that several lines were tied up and others crippled. Strike breakers had replaced the men out, he said.

Company officials asserted that only a negligible number of men had quit. All lines were being operated as usual. As a matter of precaution police were stationed at all car bars and powerhouses.

The union's leader asserted that additional men would be induced to join the strikers later in the day.

Under the co-operative plan by which 22 percent of the receipts of the company is set aside for the wage account, employees who have been in the service five years or more are entitled to 31 cents an hour. The question of union recognition is left to a referendum vote of all the employees.

As the last vote was against such recognition the officials of the company have refused to discuss matters with the officials of the union who for two months past have been demanding an increase to 40 cents an hour, the abatement of swing runs and union recognition.

There are who enjoy rushing the season will seize upon this fall model, set up with a straw band and plush tam crown, these two materials are joined by a black gros-grain ribbon ending in a ducky cascade on the left side.

ALLIES WILL WIN

Joffre Says Victory Sure on Every Front—Praises Americans

HEADQUARTERS OF THE GENERAL STAFF IN FRANCE, Aug. 7.—Gen. Joseph Joffre, generalissimo of the French army and the guiding spirit of the united army of the entente allies, received the Associated Press correspondent here and for upwards of an hour talked freely and fully on many interesting phases of the war. He expressed the view that the turning point of the great conflict had now been reached and passed, and that with the united action of the entente allies on the many fronts, they were pressing forward to the certain collapse of the German efforts and to an assured victory of the allied armies.

Gen. Joffre was in his private office at headquarters when the party of American correspondents arrived, the visit having been arranged for the anniversary of the opening of the war.

"I want to express my satisfaction in meeting you, gentlemen, and through you to express our feelings toward the American people," he said, speaking in an easy, conversational tone. "A feeling of deep friendship has always existed between France and America, and it is particularly opportune now, after France has been fighting for two years for the ideals dear to both countries, that this old friendship should be renewed and strengthened."

Complete Unity of Allies

"Although the fighting is getting more and more bitter, everyone recognizes in the complete unity of the allies that destiny has shaped its course until everyone can clearly see what the final outcome is going to be. This unity on all fronts is a great characteristic of the campaign now going on, and the effect is now apparent of the constant pressure on all sides by the allies, who now have had time to form their plans, thanks to the sacrifices which the French nation has made at Verdun."

"We must also pay full homage to the splendid part our allies are taking in the increasing efforts along the Somme and on all other fronts. The Russian effort has now succeeded in organizing and putting forward larger and larger forces of men, drawn from their apparently inexhaustible resources of human material and at the same time fully arming these masses. The splendid results of their efforts are shown in what they have accomplished in Galicia and along the entire eastern front."

Sees German Weakness

Gen. Joffre now turned his attention to the German side of the campaign, taking up the evidence of weakness, which he was shown in the quality of their attacks and in the number of reserves they are able to move to various fronts.

"If on the other side we consider the condition of our enemy," Gen. Joffre continued, "we know for certain that although they are fighting as desperately as ever, they are drawing on their last resources. Their game has been, up to now, to transfer their reserves from one point to another, but with the united action of the allies on all fronts our enemy finds such a course impossible now and will find it increasingly so in the future. It is not for me to say how long the struggle is going to last, but what really matters little. They know the crash is coming and you feel as we do, that we have already reached, passed the turning points. The five months' resistance of our troops at Verdun has shattered the bones of the Germans and has tarred the scale. But still, do not imagine that there is a complete weakening of the Germans on the western front."

HER 18th BIRTHDAY

Miss Edith Murphy of 27 England street, was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening by a number of her young friends, who called to assist her in observing her 18th birthday. A buffet lunch was served by Mrs. L. J. Lacombe and Mrs. William Murphy. Miss Murphy was presented a diamond ring and though taken absolutely by surprise, responded in a fitting manner.

Odillian Antaya Is Drowned While Bathing in Fort Pond at Leominster

LEOMINSTER, Aug. 7.—Odillian Antaya, 48, red worker, employed by the P. A. Whitney Carriage company, and living at 185 Mechanic street, was drowned yesterday in sight of his wife and daughter while he was bathing in Fort pond. The body was recovered.

KNOCKED OVER BY BOOM

Roland Robbins Drowns Following Jilting of Sailing Craft Off Northport, Me.

NORTHPORT, Me., Aug. 7.—In sight of many of the people of this resort who were on or near the steamboat wharf about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Roland Robbins, 21, of Belfast was knocked overboard by the boom of the small sloop Spray and drowned.

Robbins was standing near the mast and gave the order to jibe to avoid a collision with a motor boat. The boom swung suddenly and he was knocked overboard, sinking in 30 feet of water within a short distance of the wharf. Grappling for his life he was fruitless but it came to the surface in view of the people on the wharf when the Boston boat left the pier on her out trip at 3 o'clock last night.

DROWNS IN THE AGAWAM

Elmer E. Wing Goes Down at West Springfield While Bathing in the River

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 7.—Elmer E. Wing, 55, of 77 Ashley street, Millineague, was drowned while swimming in the Agawam river near the Perry at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Wing was a native of the American Writing Paper company, and had been working there all day. Shortly before 6 o'clock he left the factory with Louis Jefferson, another employee, with the intention of going for a swim.

When about 30 feet from the shore Wing threw up his hands and sank. A number of men at once began diving for the body. At 6:35 it was recovered from eight feet of water by Joseph A. Cook, a railroad man of Rensselaer, N. Y., with the assistance of Andrew Mandall of Moore street, Millineague and John Scully of Bridge street, Millineague. The police pulmotor was used without avail. Wing leaves a wife and three children.

WAS LEARNING TO SWIM

Thomas Elkington Is Drowned in the Piscataquog River at Manchester, N. H.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 7.—The Piscataquog river claimed its third victim within four days yesterday when Thomas Elkington, 20, 24 street lost his life by drowning. Elkington was learning to swim. While in the water at a point opposite the public bathhouse he stepped into a deep hole. He came to the surface and shouted for help. Several persons went to his aid and he was pulled out. First aid was tried, and later the pulmotor from police headquarters, but without reviving him.

FIVE DROWNED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Five persons were drowned while swimming in the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers here yesterday. It was the second hottest day of the year, the temperature reaching 82, while the humidity was 76. Thousands of persons were in the water at all points where bathing is allowed. Two deaths were reported as due to the heat and there were numerous prostrations.

SIX DROWNED IN LAKE MICHIGAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Another heat wave swept over Chicago and portions of the middle west yesterday with a maximum temperature of 86. Six men were reported drowned seeking relief from the heat in Lake Michigan. Two deaths from heat were reported. Warmer weather is predicted for Chicago tomorrow, but thunder showers and cooler weather are due in many central states, according to the weather forecaster.

SOME NEW REGULATIONS

GOVERNING THE EQUIPMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS DISPENSARIES IN CITIES AND TOWNS

Special to The Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Aug. 7.—New regulations governing the equipment of tuberculosis dispensaries in cities and towns have recently been adopted by the state department of health.

Under the provisions of chapter 576 of the acts of 1911, as amended by chapter 405 of the acts of 1914, it is required that a dispensary shall be maintained in every city, and in every town having more than 10,000 population, and that such dispensaries shall be satisfactory to the state department of health. Under these statutes the department has drafted what it considers to be the minimum requirements in a dispensary, as follows:

1. Control and maintenance.—The tuberculosis dispensary shall be under the direct control of and financed through the following (in order of preference):

(a) The local board of health.

(b) The local tuberculosis hospital.

(c) The local general hospital's outpatient department.

(d) The local anti-tuberculosis association.

2. Supervision.—The state department of health shall have supervision over all tuberculosis dispensaries, through its district health officers.

3. Rooms.—The dispensary shall have at least two outside rooms:

(a) Anteroom or waiting room. (This may be used in connection with other dispensary departments.)

(b) Examination room. (This room must be reasonably quiet.)

The rooms of the dispensary shall be well lighted during the day without the aid of artificial light, shall be heated comfortably in cold weather, and shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition at all times.

4. Equipment.—Each dispensary shall be furnished with:

(a) A pair of accurate scales.

(b) A desk of filing cabinet for records.

(c) Record blanks.

(d) Examining stools and couch or table.

(e) Clinical thermometers.

(f) Running water and adequate toilet facilities.

(g) Facilities for receiving and transmitting to a laboratory sputum specimens and a supply of sputum containers for distribution.

(h) Accessories such as, paper napkins, sputum cups; diet lists, etc.

All equipment shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition at all times.

5. Service.—All tuberculosis dispensaries shall be open for at least one hour on each day and on one evening per week. Days and hours shall be determined by the local authorities as seems best to fit local needs.

6. Staff.—Each dispensary shall have appointed at least one physician and one nurse, or otherwise qualified tuberculosis worker, both of whom shall be in constant, regular attendance. The qualifications of physicians, nurses and tuberculosis workers so appointed must be approved by the state department of health.

7. Location.—The dispensary shall be reasonably accessible for the citizens who most need the services of a dispensary.

YESTERDAY'S DROWNINGS

SEVEN LIVES WERE LOST IN NEW ENGLAND WATERS ON SUNDAY

Seven lives were lost in New England waters yesterday. They were Roland Robbins, aged 20 years, of Belfast, Me., at Northport campgrounds.

Benjamin I. Livermore, aged 23 years, of 135 East Cottage street, Dorchester, at North Scituate beach.

Thomas Elkington, aged 20 years, of 20 Second street, Manchester, N. H., in Piscataquog river.

Louis E. Browne, of 22 Walter street, Roslindale, at Biddeford Pool, Me.

Irving Hunter, aged 31 years, at Gloucester.

Elmer E. Wing at West Somerville. Odillian Antaya, at Leominster.

RIDGEBORO, Me., Aug. 7.—Louis E. Browne, aged 47, a manufacturer living at 22 Walter street, Roslindale, Mass., became exhausted while bathing in the ocean early yesterday afternoon and was drowned.

With Mr. Browne at the time was John E. McGowan, Jr., of 11 Stone street, Somerville, Mass. Browne, who was a good swimmer, had struck out some distance from his companion and into deep water. There was a strong undertow running, and when he attempted to return his strength failed him.

He shouted to one of the bathers that he was "all in," but before any one could come to his assistance he had gone down. He was taken ashore and a pulmotor was used in an effort to restore him to life. For two hours members of the Biddeford Pool life-saving station and doctors worked over him to no avail.

Mr. Browne was stopping over the week-end at the Fenderson cottage, which Mrs. Browne and Mrs. Walter J. Jew, also of 22 Walter street, Roslindale, had rented for the summer. Browne had motored down Friday.

Louis E. Browne of 22 Walter street, Roslindale, was superintendent of the Farrington Manufacturing company, jewelry and eyeglass cases, with a large factory at 23 Van street, Roxbury. He was born in Lynn, where he worked for some time as the maker and machinist with the General Electric company. In 1905 he moved to 133 Thornton street, Roxbury, to take a position with the Farrington company. He had no children.

When Harry J. Farrington, of the Farrington Manufacturing company, was seen last night, he said, "I received a telegram today telling me of the death of Mr. Browne. It was a shock to me. He was a fine fellow—the most valuable man we had."

John S. McGowan of 11 Stone street, Somerville, said last night that he had received a telegram from his son saying that Mr. Browne was drowned, but that he was safe.

LIVERMORE LOSES LIFE

Dorchester Man Is Drowned While Bathing in Surf at North Scituate Beach

SCITUATE, Aug. 7.—Benjamin Livermore, 22 years old, of 8 Mechanic street, Dorchester, was drowned in the surf in front of the Cliff House at North Scituate beach yesterday afternoon. Three doctors and two nurses, assisted by Capt. Frederick Franzen and the crew of the United States Coast Guard station, worked over the body for nearly three hours with a pulmotor.

Livermore, who was employed in the Boston branch of the Edison Electric company, was a nephew of Miss Elizabeth Golden, who lives in Scituate, and Livermore was at the beach for the day only.

Immediately after dinner he donned a bathing suit and entered the surf. A few minutes later his body was noticed floating on the waves and was brought ashore. It was the opinion of the physicians that Livermore had probably suffered from cramp or shock brought on by entering the water too quickly after eating.

SINKS IN SIGHT OF WIFE

Odillian Antaya Is Drowned While Bathing in Fort Pond at Leominster

LEOMINSTER, Aug. 7.—Odillian Antaya, 48, red worker, employed by the P. A. Whitney Carriage company, and living at 185 Mechanic street, was drowned yesterday in sight of his wife and daughter while he was bathing in Fort pond. The body was recovered.

KNOCKED OVER BY BOOM

Roland Robbins Drowns Following Jilting of Sailing Craft Off Northport, Me.

NORTHPORT, Me., Aug. 7.—In sight of many of the people of this resort who were on or near the steamboat wharf about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Roland Robbins, 21, of Belfast was knocked overboard by the boom of the small sloop Spray and drowned.

Robbins was standing near the mast and gave the order to jibe to avoid a collision with a motor boat. The boom swung suddenly and he was knocked overboard, sinking in 30 feet of water within a short distance of the wharf. Grappling for his life he was fruitless but it came to the surface in view of the people on the wharf when the Boston boat left the pier on her out trip at 3 o'clock last night.

DROWNS IN THE AGAWAM

Elmer E. Wing Goes Down at West Springfield While Bathing in the River

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 7.—Elmer E. Wing, 55, of 77 Ashley street, Millineague, was drowned while swimming in the Agawam river near the Perry at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Wing was a native of the American Writing Paper company, and had been working there all day. Shortly before 6 o'clock he left the factory with Louis Jefferson, another employee, with the intention of going for a swim.

When about 30 feet from the shore Wing threw up his hands and sank. A number of men at once began diving for the body. At 6:35 it was recovered from eight feet of water by Joseph A. Cook, a railroad man of Rensselaer, N. Y., with the assistance of Andrew Mandall of Moore street, Millineague and John Scully of Bridge street, Millineague. The police pulmotor was used without avail. Wing leaves a wife and three children.

WAS LEARNING TO SWIM

Thomas Elkington Is Drowned in the Piscataquog River at Manchester, N. H.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 7.—The Piscataquog river claimed its third victim within four days yesterday when Thomas Elkington, 20, 24 street lost his life by drowning. Elkington was learning to swim. While in the water at a point opposite the public bathhouse he stepped into a deep hole. He came to the surface and shouted for help. Several persons went to his aid and he was pulled out. First aid was tried, and later the pulmotor from police headquarters, but without reviving him.

FIVE DROWNED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Five persons were drowned while swimming in the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers here yesterday. It was the second hottest day of the year, the temperature reaching 82, while the humidity was 76. Thousands of persons were in the water at all points where bathing is allowed. Two deaths were reported as due to the heat and there were numerous prostrations.

SIX DROWNED IN LAKE MICHIGAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Another heat wave swept over Chicago and portions of the middle west yesterday with a maximum temperature of 86. Six men were reported drowned seeking relief from the heat in Lake Michigan. Two deaths from heat were reported. Warmer weather is predicted for Chicago tomorrow, but thunder showers and cooler weather are due in many central states, according to the weather forecaster.

enough money left in his regular appropriation for the maintenance of five or six new men, and if the council refuses to make the transfer, there will be no appointment of firemen this year. To a Sun reporter this morning Mr. Putnam said he was figuring how much money is left of his appropriation and he will just get by on current expenses. He said his appropriation was $100,000 and receipts and transfers amounted to $57,67, making a total of $150,037.67. Of this amount $94,595.60 was spent during the first six months or up to July 1, leaving a balance of $55,442.07. Of this amount $500 will be paid out for coal for the chief this year has ordered for the chief to March as against January in previous years. Mr. Putnam says he will just barely get by on his appropriation and cannot spend an extra penny on new men.

EASTERN LEAGUE COMMENT

Lowell at Lawrence tomorrow.

The Planters made a fine "come back" Saturday.

Paddy Green seemed to lose courage with New London three runs in the lead.

Lowell is now two full games away from the cellar.

Kane's pegging while catching in the second game was O. K. The spectators didn't steal a base.

Al Odell is the only veteran on the New London team. The rest are all youngsters coming along.

Helfrich led at bat for Lowell with two hits in each game. Greenhalge, Torphy and Green each got two in the first game.

Portland lost an exhibition game to the Stamford semi-professionals yesterday. Martin and Durning did the pitching for the Duffs but were found for 10 hits.

Robinson had six chances in right field in the first game but didn't have a thing to do in the second.

Portland and New London promise a great fight for first place.

The Lawrence Tribune says that the downriver team is out to get into the first division. Wonder if Lou Pieper is worried?

Umpire Jim Keady pulled a new one in Lawrence last week. With two men on bases Pitcher Dennington started to pass Denoville, a fairly good hitter. When two balls were thrown Keady sent Denoville to first to hurry the game along.

John J. O'Hara, the new manager of the Lawrence team, has appointed Shortstop Larry Mahoney field captain of the team to succeed Bill Lyster, who jumped to Maine.

Marty Nye, who couldn't hit with the Hartford team, is leading the Lawrence batters with an average of .250. Larry Mahoney is but one point behind.

New England Delegates Tendered Many Dinners at Chicago and Cleveland—Some Due Wednesday

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont delegates who attended the Knights of Columbus convention at Davenport, Iowa, last week, spent yesterday at Niagara Falls and left yesterday. Some will return home by Wednesday, others later. The New Englanders held together for one of the pleasantest trips ever made and despite the warm weather had an excellent time. Features of which the party will long have pleasant recollection were the dinners tendered the easterners.

At Chicago Mr. Cannon of the Catholic Foresters of America entertained some 40 visitors with an automobile ride through the nearly 50 miles of park system, and ended with dinner at the Fismark garden. On the same evening President Charles Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox gave the party a dinner, and on Saturday night Maurice F. Drummer of Boston gave the party a dinner at the Colonial, Cleveland, O. The party came across Lake Erie Saturday night and attended church in Buffalo yesterday morning.

At Davenport, Ia., during the convention William F. Shanahan of Somerville was approached by a resident of that city who greeted him as Martin Lonsuey, and insisted that they had met at the St. Louis democratic convention, and it was hard work to convince the Iowa of the error. Past State Deputy Edward Maley of Newport, N. H., was mistaken for President Wilson, whom he resembles.

Among those who are returning home are Judge J. F. Moran of New Bedford, Deputy Sheriff Colgan of Augusta, Tom Dowd of Nashua, Frederick Grace of Fair Haven, N. Y., and others.

TOM HUGHES LEADING ALL
THE NATIONAL LEAGUE TWIRLERS

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Tom Hughes of the Braves ranks as the leading pitcher of the National league just now with a record of nine victories and two defeats. This gives him a percentage of .818. Rube Marquand of Brooklyn is second on the list, although he has won only four games and lost one. Alexander of the Phillies is the real leader with a record of nineteen victories and six defeats. Nine of his victories have been shutouts. His percentage is .760. Mamaux of the Pirates ranks next to Alex with fifteen wins and five defeats as his record. Al is tied with Plicker of the Dodgers, who has a similar record.

NEW LONDON WON BOTH

LOWELL DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE WITH PLANTERS IN DOUBLE BILL SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The New London Planters came back hard at Lowell at Spalding park Saturday afternoon and made Manager Kilhullen's nine boys to them in both games of a double header. The first game was one sided and was won by the score of 11 to 3, while the second, a seven inning affair, was taken by a 4 to 1 score.

Paddy Green started off like a major leaguer in the first game and struck out three men in succession in the second inning but after three runs had been scored on one hit and wild heaves by Shorty Dee, Green was not so effective.

Bunny Hearn, the big southpaw selected by Manager McLean for the first game, held Lowell hitters for five innings. Helfrich broke the ice with a single to right in the sixth and three hits in the seventh gave Lowell its first run. Two more runs were pushed across in the eighth but they did not go for New London got to Green hard in the ninth and added five runs to the score.

Though New London hit hard in the first game, the team's work in the field featured. Flashy plays by the infield robbed the Lowell players of what looked like sure hits. Rodriguez on first base made several star plays while Odell, Dowd and Marhefka were also present with sensational stops.

SECOND GAME

Freddie Rieger's effective pitching and timely hitting won the second game for New London. Lowell started off with two hits in the first inning and was robbed of a couple more by the fine fielding of Odell on third but after that season Rieger tightened and allowed but four more hits during the game. Freddie was also "there" at the bat scoring one run after making a pretty single and knocking in two more with a long triple to centre.

Bonsack pitched a good game for Lowell. Rieger's triple came in the third with two out or the score would have been close. But six hits were scored from Bonsack. The score:

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Good work, Red Sox.

Now for the White Sox.

It wouldn't be using Matty very kindly to take two more games, but the Braves need them.

When the laurels for durability are passed around, old Frank Schulte of the Pirates shouldn't be overlooked. Chicago bought Schulte from Syracuse in 1904 and he has been wearing the Cub livens ever since.

The Williams college athletic council announces that Ira Thomas, the veteran catcher of the Athletics, has been secured to coach the Purple nine.

After being a sensation in the spring, Cliff Markle of the Yankees has become a sad disappointment in mid-season. Since he was three straight early in the year he has not pitched a good game.

Noale, the Red outfielder, has a nickname that he would sell cheap. For some unknown reason he had "Greasy" wished on him by the fans, and he doesn't appreciate it a bit.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The All Stars will meet on the Chambers street playgrounds Tuesday evening for practice. The All Stars will play in Tewksbury Saturday.

The Tyngsboro A. A. easily defeated a team from the Cartridge shop league at Tyngsboro Saturday by a score of 12 to 0. The features were the pitching of Curtin and the hitting of the town team. McLean, Harlow and Nolan played fast. The score: T. A. A. ... 1 2 2 1 0 0 3 3 x—12 17 1
C. S. 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 8 2

EVERS TO TAKE LAY OFF

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Captain Johnny Evers of the Braves will not be able to return to handle his job on the diamond today, nor, perhaps, for some time to come. While Johnny had planned to do this, an attack of what is diagnosed as a severe attack of neuritis, centered in the right side of his neck and down the entire length of his right arm, has crippled him.

The ailment is by no means of recent origin. Earlier in the season, as will be remembered, he was forced to take an extended lay-off, the trouble at that time centering in his throwing arm near the elbow. It prevented him from throwing except with great pain. In the course of time the trouble vanished and he was able to hurl the ball around with all his former speed and freedom.

Then, coincident with the severe attack of nervous trouble that was mainly responsible for his recent actions on the field, there was a return of the ailment. He complained of a stiff neck and a lame back last Friday. This prevented him from getting into the game the last two days of the week and from that time until yesterday the attack has grown worse.

Yesterday it troubled him so much that the services of a doctor were required to afford him some relief. Frequent cold applications were ordered. In spite of the fact that he can hardly raise his arm, Johnny, with his characteristic grit and determination, has announced that he will play today if he is wanted. But this, in his present condition, is out of the question.

SOUTH ENDS WON

In one of the fastest games played on the South common for some time, Pitts South Ends defeated the Broadway Social club Saturday afternoon by the score of 3 to 1. It was the second game of the championship series between these teams, the first being won by the South End boys. The game was a pitchers' battle between Devlin and Pouliot, the latter a former South End twirler. Devlin had the better of the duel and also received almost perfect support, while the Broadways piled up six errors. The score:

South Ends	0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0—3

Batteries: Pitts South Ends, Devlin and Freeman; Broadway, Pouliot and Grove.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Aug. 7.—Maurice E. McLoughlin and William Johnston are expected and other tennis stars are on hand today for the second round of the singles in the 27th western lawn tennis championship tournament here. Part of the 7th round, started Saturday, also will be completed.

McLoughlin's first opponent carded for today is Clarence Cole. Johnston's opponent is J. J. Lewis.

TO DISCUSS UMPIRES

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW OR WEDNESDAY

A National league meeting, called especially to let President Haughton elucidate some of his ideas on the question of umpiring and so forth, is on the cards for tomorrow or Wednesday. Quietly assembled, the high moguls of the "Tener circuit" are to have a chance to tell their own life stories. It will be an "experience" meeting on the umpire subject, and it is expected that it will clear the atmosphere and perhaps provide new ways and means for making permanent the "new leaf" system adopted by the peace-loving local aborigines under Chief Stallings.

Haughton, as we understand it from various and devious sources, is not to go into this meeting with anything resembling a "blustering" demand for this, that or the other thing. He believes, rather, that if the problem really exists and his brother magnates agree with him that it does, it must be treated with considerable care, and absolutely on the basis that co-operation on the part of all concerned must be the keynote of whatever campaign is to be waged. Whether or not the deliberations of the august body of magnates are made at all public, it is deemed certain that there will be a general get-together. In short, it is to be decidedly a peace meeting, with Boston, in a sense, hearing an olive branch.

JOE CHRISTO'S COMEBACK

The best claim made ever, and a fine program of sports were the attractions at Nabessal grove, yesterday, and the occasion served Joe Christo an opportunity to show that he was right there with the comeback. There were those who were foolish enough to think Joe had gone by the boards as a runner, but his performance yesterday brings him back in the list of top-notchers. His defeat of Leroy Davis and Fred Couture in a special three mile race was the feature event of the interesting program of sports. Christo had to go some to beat his opponents, but he was there with the goods and finished a smiling hero. Davis finished second and Couture third. A special three mile swimming race between Mike Wron and Tim Maloney was won by the former by about eight yards.

Exhibition boxing matches which proved interesting were put on by Jack and Finney Royle and Young Quinn and Kid Roberts. The clam bakes attracted a crowd of about 300 and all enjoyed the afternoon. Clams, fish chowder and other dishes comprised a substantial buffet luncheon.

AFTER THE DEUTSCHLAND

Allied Warships Reappear Off Virginia Capes—Pilot Thinks U-Boat Nearly Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Interest among naval and marine experts here suddenly revived yesterday in the German submarine, the Deutschland, and Bremen with the reports early yesterday morning that allied warships had reappeared off the Capes. The warships which have been watching for the two submarines are reported to believe the Deutschland has not left the three-mile limit, and they are still waiting for its departure.

Naval officers agree in the opinion that the Deutschland is still in United States waters. They are inclined to disregard the story that the sub-sea microphones attached to the keels of the allied vessels have been depended on to detect the outward passage of the submarine, but they are almost unanimous in the belief that as a tactical proposition the under-water freighter is either lying on the bottom somewhere off the coast or cruising up and down within the three-mile limit.

As far as the arrival of the Bremen goes, officers here are openly expecting that she will come in some time during the next 10 days. Their belief is not founded on any official "tip," but a deduction they have reached from a consideration of the whole situation. Little more than a week ago some officers thought the Bremen had been captured by the allied warships. From information since the departure of the Deutschland they have concluded that the Bremen had not left her German port at that time.

The reappearance of the warships off the Capes is taken here as an indication that they are expecting the Bremen. Officers also point out that the German interests would never have given out the tip that the Bremen had left her port if it were true. What they do believe is that the second submarine was loading its cargo and making test plunges in its home port during most of the time the Deutschland was in Baltimore and that the latter purposely delayed her return voyage to cut down the long wait in the country for her sister ship.

As for the Deutschland herself, it is thought the allied vessels missed her completely. She gave the missed boats the slip and it is doubtful if any one has an accurate idea of where she is at present. No further work is expected of her until she docks at the mouth of the Kiel.

PILOT SURE SHE'S SAFE

Saw Deutschland Hitting It Up for Her Home Port and Thinks She is Nearly There

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—Capt. Owen Coleman, the pilot who took the submarine Deutschland from port here to the Capes and saw her off on her return trip to the other side, returned to Baltimore this evening. He ridicules the story that names the Norfolk which suggests that the undersea boat is still resting on the bottom of the sea at the Capes.

"You may rest assured," said Capt. Coleman, "that the Deutschland is hitting it up for her home port—and that she's nearly there. All that stuff about her still being near the Virginia Capes, waiting for a favorable opportunity to leave, is bunk. When I left her on the night of Aug. 2 she was heading straight to sea—and she was invisible, for I do not believe she submerged."

"She merely disappeared in the distance, resembling, because of her dirty green and white streaked hull, a perfectly ordinary ocean wave. It is possible and probable that she submerged after we had lost sight of her. If I judged her master correctly, she very likely ducked right under the nose of an enemy ship. Capt. Koenig's a great one for this iron stuff."

"We watched her for several hours, that is, we watched for her, through marine glasses, but she just seemed suddenly to evaporate. I think it was an illusion. That point looks wonderful. We could see the horizon and could scan the wrinkled face of the sea, but we saw only waves."

Capt. Coleman, though aboard the Deutschland when she left port, did not go down with her when she made the test off Smiths Point in 130 feet of water.

"I was under orders to remain on board only while she was floating," he explained. "I would have liked to go down and I never would have forgotten the experience. But orders were orders. She made only the one dive in the Chesapeake; I went on board the tug 'Thimble'."

Regarding the crew of the submarine, Capt. Coleman said that he had never seen men so happy at being homeward bound.

"There was not the slightest sign of fear among them," he said. "They were plainly exuberant. They spoke with the greatest praise of the treatment they received in Baltimore and asserted that they carried back with them the most pleasant memories of their stay here. But they were glad of one thing—to get away from the heat, and also to get on the final lap of the trip which will make them famous."

STABBED FOR BEING GERMAN
NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 7.—When John Zarinka was in front of his house on Water street, corner of Smith's court, at an early hour yesterday morning, he was accosted by a man, who is alleged to have demanded, "Are you a German?" Zarinka replied that he was a German Poleander, whereupon the stranger, who said he was a Russian Pole, is alleged to have drawn a knife. In the melee that followed Zarinka was stabbed several times, one of his arms being badly injured. The assailant disappeared.

The injured man was taken to the Anna Jacques hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Zarinka was greatly weakened by loss of blood.

LADY LOOKABOUT

One of the worst features of summer furs is this: even though you have mentally registered your disapproval of the fashion, and even though the very thought of wearing them makes a cool day seem hot, you cannot escape the discomfort produced by seeing them on others. At times you must admit that there is a certain piquant charm about sheer organdie combined with soft white fur, but again you are assailed by the discomfort of observing it on the wearers that is almost as bad as wearing it yourself. At the best it is a silly, silly fad, but if you are going to suffer anyway, you may as well swallow it in a set of your own and really they are becoming. This may be a woman's logic, but you must admit that it is pretty good.

Making Both Ends Meet

These are times which test a woman's housewifely ingenuity and practicality to the utmost. With the cost of food constantly going higher, together with the prices on drugs and many other things, it means either that there must be more money coming or that the income must be made to go further than ever before. Unfortunately, no general increase in salaries has come along with the advance in the cost of living, and when the housewife is compelled to economize, the entire family suffers, and discontent starts among the wage earners. If the employers of organized labor turned their energies toward keeping down the cost of the necessities of life, they would reduce to a minimum this discontent and consequent inclination to strike.

The Sheep and the Goats

There is a suggestion to the founders and fathers of the local class citizenship. If an alien, ignorant of the laws and customs of this country, can be so well instructed in them by a weekly talk during a part of one winter that he can assume the duties of citizenship and execute them with satisfaction, why would it not be to the mutual advantage of all concerned, to take a class of American women, the wives, sisters, daughters and mothers of voters, and impart to them some of this precious instruction that they, too, may become voting citizens? Too long have the sheep been separated from the goats, and now the sheep (for goats) like the proverbial worms are turning.

Boys and Their Pranks

"Boys will be boys," I suppose until the end of time, and, I assume, that until that day arrives boys will derive the quintessence of joy from trying a can to a cat's tail. The fate of the poor cat in Pawtucketville last week, which met with a most tragic ending by being shot by the agent of the Humane society after she had taken refuge in a tall tree for two days with a can tied to her tail, should strike the average boy as pretty poor fun. I like to think that there is a good side to every boy's character, one susceptible to appeal to his higher nature, but often it takes a far stretch of the imagination to assume it in some boys. The trouble is they do not permit themselves to look far enough ahead to reckon on the possibilities of their actions, and often they cause pain and suffering by their thoughtlessness, when such were far from their intention. Charitable view should be taken of these pranks of boys by their elders and incidentally the opportunity to awaken a little conscience should not be wasted.

Nobody Loves Freckled Women

It is all very well to console your freckled friends with that ancient whepper, "This only the fairest skin that freckles," but when these abominable spots come on your own nose or your own neck, or your own hands and arms, then all consolation vanishes, and the owner of the "fairest skin" would gladly exchange it for the less fair, but far more beautiful cuticle of her freckleless sister. It is a true case of "that's different." Men are not troubled with this affliction, hence the lack of sympathy, but while women know their sympathy takes the form of inward thanksgiving if they be of the less fair skin, that they have been spared, while their lips form those cold, cruel words, "This only the fairest skin that freckles."

As She Sees It

The judge in New York City who sentenced the strikers who beat up a strike breaker to support the man's family until he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to return to work, acted in the cause of humanity, and the sentence he imposed promises to open new lines of punishment in judicial circles. If the persons responsible for the incapacitating of a man with a dependent family can be made to provide for that family during the period of incapacity, why may not the same ruling apply to saloonkeepers and the havoc they cause in homes? Too many families have been kept down the bread-winner through the agency of strong drink sold over the bar by men who take advantage of the weakened wills and broken-down manhood of their customers. If instead of imposing a fine on a poor bankrupt drunkard, a judge should call before him the man who had sold the cause of the unfortunate's condition and sentence him to support the abused wife and neglected children until such time as the husband and father could again take up his family burden, intemperance would be wiped out in a very short time. The national conscience has sunk into a deep sleep, and awaits its awakening through an agency not yet uncovered.

THEIR CRYSTAL WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashton were surprised at their home, 110 Andrews street, Saturday night, the occasion being the 15th anniversary of their wedding. A number of relatives and friends called during the evening to offer congratulations, and the happy couple was the recipient of many gifts.

Mr. Ashton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ashton of Old street and was born in England, but came here in October, 1914. He was employed a short time at the U. S. C. Co., but finally settled as a clerk at the A. G. Pollard store. On Aug. 4, 1901, he married Adrienne Linda, the daughter of Robert Mountain of Bangor, Rawlston and Haslingden, England. Mr. and Mrs. Ashton are members of the Gorham St. P. M. church.

HANGS HIMSELF IN HOST'S BARN

METHUEN, Aug. 6.—Joseph Mechorie, 30 years old, whose residence is unknown, hanged himself by a rope in the barn of John Palisz, 63 Riverdale street, here yesterday.

No reason was given for the act. Mechorie was a friend of Palisz, and came to visit him for the day. Shortly after dinner he disappeared and was later found in the barn swinging from a beam.

TOWN OF TROYES

Capital of Champagne is Situated on an Alluvial Plain

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Troves, which has been the concentration camp of the Russian troops brought to France to aid in the allies' drive against the Germans, is the subject of a recent war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"Before the outbreak of the European war the town of Troves, situated 100 miles southeast of Paris, and 175 miles west of the Alsatian frontier, was known to American importers as one of the centers of the silk, cotton and woolen hosiery industry of France."

"As the chief town of the department of the Aube, this ancient capital of Champagne, with a population of about 50,000, is charmingly situated on an alluvial plain, with the Seine flowing to the east, and its narrow, crooked streets intersected here and there by canals."

"The history of Troves, includes many stirring and dramatic episodes. When the Romans came they gave the name of Augustonema to this capital of the Celtic Treveri. One of the heroic figures of its early Christian days was St. Lupus, or Lupus, the intrepid bishop who succeeded in persuading the supposedly ruthless Hun, Attila, to spare the town. But there was no diplomatic churchman to stay the hand of conquering Normans during the closing years of the ninth century; they sacked the town, leaving it a heap of ruins. Shortly after this calamity the power of the bishops and of the nuns in the famous abbey of Notre-Dame-aux-Nonnains began to wane and authority was transferred to the counts of Troves, afterward known as the counts of Champagne."

"For a short time during the 100 years' war the city was the seat of the royal government of France during the period when the country was being devastated by for as home as well as by those abroad, while the mad king, Charles VI, raved, neglected, at Senlis. It was at this epoch that the French national pride that the treaty of Troves was signed in 1212, whereby Henry V. of England, was made regent of the kingdom, and the dauphin, afterward to become Charles VII, was declared illegitimate. To make the bargain more secure the new ruler took as his bride, Catherine, the dauphin's sister, and the marriage was solemnized in the church of St. Jean, one of the 13th century edifices which Troves still treasures as a show place."

"Nine years after this treaty and marriage Troves was redeemed for France of Joan of Arc while she was marching toward Rheims at the head of 12,000 troops, to attend the coronation of the uncrowned dauphin."

"Following this momentous period Troves entered upon an era of great prosperity, and by the middle of the seventeenth century had a population about equal to its present size. During that time Protestantism had enjoyed considerable recognition in the

GETTING THINGS DONE

A sense of responsibility is good for cities as for individuals, and one does not learn how to get out of trouble until he has once been into it. If a great many things await action, the longer we dally over them and hem and haw, the harder do they seem. The way to accomplish things is to look ahead, map out what must be done and then get right into it.

Lowell is doing this at the present time to an almost unprecedented extent. Not in recent years have so many important projects been under way at one time. Some are only in their initial stage and some have progressed to a reasonable extent, but apparent delays can be satisfactorily explained. Moreover, practically everything that is being done on a large scale has the unanimous support of the public and there is now a healthy interest in our civic affairs.

It surely looks like progress to one who in a short walk goes by the cleared site of the new high school to be, the progressing Dunmer street extension and the new bridge at Pawtucketville. The bridge work is getting well under way, the buildings across from city hall are rapidly disappearing and work will be started on the foundations of the high school in a short time. Moreover plans for a so-called contagious hospital are being perfected and Mayor O'Donnell is striving to get the co-operation of the county, with the tacit approval of the state board of health.

As plans on these three or four large projects develop, the Lowell public will see the value of looking at municipal affairs in a broad way removed from petty bickering. In the early stages of the bridge agitation, the high school, the contagious hospital and other plans, political wrangles and factional disagreements prevented action and if this spirit kept up we should be talking forever and getting nothing accomplished. If things must be done it is a pretty good plan to find a way to do them as soon as possible—with reasonable regard for economy, to be sure—and then get busy on the practical work.

There is one side to the question that may be more or less disconcerting and that has to do with the cost. To build schools and bridges and hospitals or to extend streets through congested areas takes money, but if the people get full value for what they spend, they will not complain. We have learned in our cost that the cry of economy is not always sincere or wise and that a policy of doing nothing and postponing every important improvement demanded may ultimately be a very costly policy for the city. By the time the present plans are perfected and the different projects completed we will have so got the habit of doing things that the people may look for something else to do. We will not have to look long to find channels for the expenditure of energy. There still remains a pretty considerable program of improvement for the future, including a public hall, school improvements, river bank and other park developments and all the nice things that we talk about when we get ambitious or when we indulge in pipe dreams. Some day they will all be a reality and then Lowell will have reason to challenge the best city of our size and type in New England.

ADJOURNMENT POSTPONED

It is not without humor that most Americans regard the closing of a session of congress with relief, but such seems to be the case, judging from the comments in the papers. It has been especially the case during the delicate controversies of the present administration, for congress did not always support the president as strongly as it might have, and it has little reason to feel elated over the issues on which it retarded his policies. Particularly is this true of the republicans who made anything but a creditable showing at the time of the submarine showdown.

The present session shows every indication of dragging on into October, though it was thought some time ago that it might adjourn in June or in July at the latest. Controversies have since developed on some of the most important bills, and a compromise is not looked for until they have run their course in the usual way.

The federal child labor bill is one bone of contention, it being most distasteful to some of the southern senators and congressmen. It is pretty sure to pass but it will be blocked at every turn. Some of those who are opposed declare that the measure is unconstitutional, but they scarcely believe what they say in this respect. A fight has also developed on the army and navy bill, but not on party lines. The "small navy" advocates have representatives of both parties but though they are at variance with the overwhelming sentiment of the country they can do considerable blocking of legislation and prolong the session. The revenue bill is also a matter of hesitation and controversy it being predicted that the bill will have to be recast before it can secure a majority.

It is more than probable that a little partisan trickery is behind some of the present congressional moves, but President Wilson seems to hold the advantage. His hold on congress has always been acknowledged and it cannot be proved that he has at any time abused it. His strength will be seen in the present situation if the session is unnecessarily prolonged.

REFUSING TO BITE

The result of the progressive conference at Indianapolis may be grudgingly admitted a victory for President Wilson in some quarters, but it cannot surely be regarded as a victory for Mr. Hughes. If Roosevelt progressives, they would have had to rally the action of the leader as a matter of course, but they came out strongly against lining up with any candidate, leaving it to individuals to support whom they choose. Their action was in effect a strong repudiation of the Roosevelt derivation of progressive principles and they specifically determined to keep their organization in all states where such is possible. Since by following Roosevelt in his flop to the republicans they would automatically destroy the progressive party, they have taken action against Roosevelt and his decision. The election will show that many if not most progressives will show their disapproval of Roosevelt's action in a more practical way. As seen by Chairman McCormick of the democratic national committee: "That the progressives by their action in Indianapolis showed a leaning towards President Wilson and not for Charles E. Hughes, is the only conclusion that can be reached. The meeting proved that the progressives decline to have a halter put on them and that they will not be led into the republican ranks."

CROP OF CANDIDATES

From the preliminary announcements and the intimations of buzzing hums it is evident that the recent redistricting of this region has not discouraged growing political ambitions. The crop of local candidates for state office shall be as large as ever and it shall be of much the same quality as before. There side by side is the young aspirant who suffers from a malady that he diagnoses as the public office itch, and the seasoned runner who is forever active in political marathons but who never managed to get there. Seems too bad in a way that with the reorganization of the district we could not have a little rearrangement and repression of political material. If we could eliminate the chronic office seeker of no special ability and educate all parties to pick out their best material, Lowell might be better served in the legislature in the future than it has in the past—though in all fairness it must be admitted that Lowell's average in the legislature is fit to compare with that of most Massachusetts cities. It is a healthy sign that the weakest aspirants for office now generally poll the smallest number of votes. Let us hope that the standard of public employe will be higher under the new system than ever before.

WHERE OH WHERE?

Among the departed glories, never, alas, to return, is the political campaign of other days when the candidate who could muster up the largest torchlight parade, supply sensational stunts, furnish doughnuts and coffee in abundance and amuse the people to the greatest extent ran a good chance of landing the job. In those days, parade announcements sometimes attracted as many people from the surrounding country as the annual circus and the parade itself with banners and bands and roll fire was a great American institution. Sometimes there was a speech and sometimes there wasn't, but it never was on the principles of the campaign and really nobody cared. So long as the candidate could tell funny stories and call his opponent names he got by. There has been a great change indeed and though our campaigns now are more prosaic, they are more sensible. We now ask Mr. Hughes or Mr. McCall or Mr. Fitzgerald, as the case may be, to talk on the issues and the authorities keep tabs on campaign expenses. Campaigns are not so picturesque as formerly, but they are more intelligent.

LOST IN WOODS

This year there have been many sad cases of people getting lost in the woods, some of whom have been found in an exhausted condition and some of whom have died. There have also been cases of murder and attack of defenseless women and taken all together it behooves those who contemplate going in the woods to seek a companion before they wander far from home. No matter how well one may know the country it is very easy to get lost, and a night spent wandering in woods and swamps is not a pleasant experience. Children especially going for berries or for say purpose should not go alone, as unfortunately there are many dangers which the daily papers reveal only too plainly. There is no rarer delight than a day spent gathering blueberries or more enjoying the freedom of the open, but even there, it is not well to disregard the principles of "safety first."

BLOCKING FIRE ESCAPES

In some of the large tenement buildings of this city one may observe that the blocking of fire escapes by clothing and kitchen utensils is quite common. In some cases part of the fire escape is converted into a playground for children and partitioned off by a chair or some other obstruction. This is a bad practice and it should not be allowed as it would be easy for the habit to develop until fire escapes would be more of a hindrance than a help in case of fire. In New York the abuse became so pronounced that the tenement house commissioner worked for the reduction of the fine from $10 to $2 in order that the courts might impose it on offenders. Those who use fire escapes for extraneous purposes do not offend maliciously, but for their own good and the good of the city they should be made to do otherwise.

SEEN AND HEARD

Charlie Morse would take it awfully to heart if the Ten-pound should fail of re-election this fall.

Should Girls Propose?

"Yes," said the old mathematician, with a gleam in his eyes. "I've always looked at it that way. Marriage is addition; when the little ones come it's multiplication; when dissension comes up to cloud the horizon of their happiness, it's division; and when the final parting comes it's subtraction."

"And how about divorce?" asked the listener.

"Oh, that would come under the denomination of fractions!"

Keep Off the Grass

They were a very saving old couple, and as a result they had a beautifully furnished house. One day the old woman missed her husband. "Joseph, where are you?" she called out.

"I'm resting in the parlor," came the reply. "What on the sofa?" cried the old woman, horrified. "No, on the floor."

"Not on that grand carpet!" came in tones of anguish. "No, I've rolled it up!"

Got In Rather Deep

During a social evening a lady in Brookline sang to the guests. Her voice was so poor and her knowledge of music so slight that one of the guests turned to a meek looking little man sitting at the table and said: "How awful! Who can she be?"

"That," replied the man addressed, "is my wife."

"Oh, I b-b-beg your pardon!" stammered the other. "She's really a—I know she'd sing beautifully if she really had a better selection of her music. Who do you suppose wrote that song?"

"I am the author of that song," replied the meek looking little man.

Gathering Fish Eggs

Latest reports from the government hatchery on Ten-pound Island, in Gloucester harbor, say that in the future the fish will not be stripped of their eggs by hand. This change is made possible by the erection, at a cost of $300, of a concrete retaining basin for brood fishes. Their eggs, as discharged, float to the surface and are caught by a current and are deposited on screens. An almost automatic operation thus supplants the work of the spawn takers, who have hitherto handled the fish in their hands. The new method, which has been tested at Woods Hole, is cheaper than

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."—Mrs. JOHN A. ROENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Let after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

My dear woman, we beg of you to take sensible advice and try this medicine before it is too late.

Unlucky Fame for Joe
"Joe" Legare of Lowell, well known in this city where he made many friends during the days when he served as private secretary of Congressman Butler Ames when that gentleman had the honor of serving this city as well as Lowell—it being then the Lowell-Lawrence district—in congress, is likely to gain unluckily fame. He has refused, yes, actually refused, an appointment to a state board. He was asked by a friend to accept the day by receiving from Gov. McCall an appointment as a member of the board of trustees of the state infirmary and state farm. Mr. Legare did not want the job and he said to the governor that he had to appoint some one else. Lawrence Telegram.

If He Had a Million
Two urchins were playing on the curb. They were evidently engaged in some make-believe game, for one of them was heard to say to the other: "If you had a million dollars—no, a thousand million dollars—so you could have anything you want, what would you take first?"

The other seemed unable to decide. He took his head. It was too much for him.

"But if you had a thousand million dollars and could have anything, what would you buy to eat?" urged the companion.

The little fellow's eyes then caught sight of the fruitstand nearby, and an enlightened smile stole over his thought-clogged face.

"I'd buy that whole box of apples," he said quickly, "and I'd give you half, 'cause I could get some more when they were gone."

He Didn't Advertise
During a convention of ad writers held recently some one told the following story:

"A man entered a shop one cold day and bought a woolen muffler. When he opened the muffler he found inside the photograph of a beautiful girl with a note couched in these terms: 'If you are single, please write to me.'"

A name and address followed, and the man smiled. He was single. He placed the photo on his library table. In a week he had fallen in love with the picture of the beautiful girl. So he wrote to her.

"A week passed, during which the bachelor was in a fever of impatience. He finally received this terrible blow in the shape of a letter: 'Dear Sir: The Mary Jones to whom you wrote was my grandmother. She died nine years ago, aged 87 years. Yours truly,'"

Upon investigating this strange case the broken hearted bachelor discovered that he had purchased the muffler from a dealer who had advertised in the Woonsocket Evening Call.

"Cling Fast to Hope"
Who thinks tomorrow will not bring him more Than the sad days and years have passed before.

Who thinks that joy is false and love is cheap, That since some things are bitter, none are sweet.

Has cast away—or lost—his kindest friend; And all men should cherish to the end.

Cling fast to hope! What though she show to thee Visions of gladness which shall never be.

Wouldst thou walk blindly through a darkened vale Because the sun shows heights thou wouldst not scale?

Wouldst thou tear down the drapery of thy halls Because it hides the rough and jagged walls?

Man, oh, the downcast face, lift up thine eyes, Look on the world which all around thee lies.

To left and right full many a patch, Whose first long stage was grief and misery.

And yet which ended in the ways of ease, Leading along cool brooks, 'mid flowers and trees.

Remember this: That in a life whose sum Includes both joy and sorrow, there must come

A time when sorrow, having spent its all Of wrath upon thy head, must then let

His shattered sword, and give unwilling place To joy, who follows him with shining face.

So with the end approaching, thou lookest back Over the lights and shadows of thy track.

And by the clear rays of the setting sun, Seest plain what blessings thou has lost or won.

Thou then canst lift thy voice and raise thine eyes, And thank the God above thee in the skies.

That in the darkness where thou oft didst grope, There was not lost thy greatest treasure—hope.

—D. M. Gooding, in New York Sun.

SAVED THEIR LIVES
But for the presence of mind and prompt action of Mrs. R. P. Kidder of 19 Hastings street, this city, two young men would probably have been drowned at Baptist pond in South Chelmsford yesterday afternoon.

The young men were racing in canoes when one of the boats overturned and the occupant of the other canoe went to the rescue but apparently neither was a strong swimmer and condition when Mrs. Kidder reached them.

Noting the predicament in which the young men were she entered a boat and rowed to the spot where the two were struggling in the water and unassisted succeeded in bringing them into her boat. Neither young man was any the worse for the dip in the water.

TAFT AND T. R. ON STUMP STRAITS OF OTRANTO

MAY BE HEARD FROM SAME PLATFORM IN MAINE—LODGE AND WEEKS ALSO TO SPEAK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The republican congressional campaign for Maine is about to get under way. The speakers' bureau has prepared a list of those who will address the Maine voters in their interest, and 35 are to go to the Pine Tree state for the September campaign. Among these are ex-presidents Roosevelt and Taft. The latter has not definitely consented, but his promise is understood to be made unofficially. The two ex-presidents have not been slated on the same platform as yet, but there is no telling what the campaign will develop.

The speaking campaign will begin the latter part of August. About 500 dates have been arranged for the 35 speakers, covering almost every section of the state.

Among the other speakers of national note slated for the Maine campaign are Senators Lodge and Weeks of Massachusetts, ex-Senator Burton of Ohio, Senator Sherman of Illinois and Senator Borah of Idaho. The list also includes ex-Sec. of the Treasury Shaw.

About 20 congressmen of more than local reputation have been corralled by the speakers' bureau for Maine service. Among these are Simon D. Fess of Ohio and George Edmund Ross of Illinois.

The republican managers indicate that they are going to strain every effort to carry the Maine election. The speakers' bureau of the republican congressional committee is directed by Congressman Slemo, the only republican congressman from Virginia. He has arranged the campaigns for several other states, among them being Nebraska, Maryland and Delaware.

RISE OF PRINT PAPER
FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION WANTS INFORMATION FROM NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Publishers of newspapers, dailies, weeklies, monthlies, quarterlies or any other regularly published paper which requires print paper, and also job printers, who have been affected by the steadily increasing price of print paper, are urged to supply information to Chairman Hurley of the federal trade commission at Washington before Aug. 15.

Chairman Hurley wants all newspaper men to prepare immediately answers to the schedule of questions bearing on paper supplies, prices and trade conditions. J. H. Zerby, chairman of the white paper committee of the National Editorial Association, dealing with the price of print paper, is calling upon every publisher in the country to file answers. There are so many publishers that Mr. Zerby is afraid that it will be impossible in the short time available to communicate directly with all of them.

It is important that the answers be supplied immediately for use by Chairman Hurley and Chairman Zerby in connection with the investigation now in progress in Washington, at which charges have been made against the paper manufacturers by publishers who have been called upon to testify.

By a general response of publishers and consumers of print paper it is believed that extremely valuable information will be obtained by the committee looking out for the interests of the publishers.

Answers to the schedule of questions should be delivered to Judge Hurley at Washington or J. H. Zerby, chairman of the white paper committee of the National Editorial Association at Pottsville, Penn., by Aug. 15—positively not later than Aug. 21.

Publishers who find they are unable to answer all the questions are requested to answer those they can. Chairman Hurley pledges absolute secrecy for all information thus obtained. The request applies to publishers of all papers, whether or not they are subscribers to news services.

The importance of answering the questions is apparent from the fact that the price of print paper has been steadily increasing for months, and publishers have experienced considerable difficulty in getting paper even at the advanced prices. The tremendous increase has necessitated newspapers in New York and other places reducing the size of their papers, the number of pages and adopting a no-return policy. Newspapers in some of the larger cities have found it imperative to increase the price of their papers from 1 to 2 cents on account of the excessive paper cost.

Suffrage Association Submits Three Direct Questions for Answer to Congress Members

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—In shaping plans for their campaign for passage of a federal woman suffrage amendment through the next congress, the National American Women Suffrage association already has begun a canvass of the attitude of candidates for the senate and house of representatives.

The association's headquarters were announced last night that it had submitted to each member for congress the following questions:

"Are you in favor of woman suffrage?"

"If elected will you vote in congress to submit to the states a federal amendment to enfranchise the women of this country?"

"If appointed on a committee in whose jurisdiction such an amendment should fall, will you do all in your power to expedite the passage of such a measure?"

NORTH ADAMS BOY DEAD
Parents Thought Child Was Merely Teething and Failed to Call Doctor in Time

NORTH ADAMS, Aug. 7.—Robert H. Bastian, 11 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bastian, died yesterday morning from infantile paralysis. The child had been ill since Thursday, but the parents did not call a doctor until Saturday night, as it was thought that the child was only teething.

SIXTH REGIMENT

Goes Into Camp—Begins Tour of Duty at Edgartown

The members of Companies C, G and K, Sixth Infantry of this city, left yesterday for Edgartown, where for the next two weeks they will hold their encampment with other companies of the Sixth. The militiamen went by special train, which was composed of ten coaches, leaving Lowell between 6 and 7 o'clock and headed for New Bedford. En route the special train picked up Company E of Framingham and Company I of Concord. The trip to the Whale city was a most pleasant one.

After leaving the train at New Bedford the "soldiers" enjoyed a picturesque sail across Buzzard's Bay and the sound to Edgartown on Martha's Vineyard, this being followed by a three-mile hike to the site selected for the encampment.

The camp is beautifully located and the site has been prepared by Capt. Henry H. Wheelock, quartermaster. The whole camp was piped for water the tents of headquarters and those of the officers erected, also the cook houses, and it took but a little time for the cooks to get to work.

Tomorrow morning the regiment will go on regular field rations and Capt. Lewis G. Hutton, who is handling the commissary, has the complete food supply on hand with the exception of fresh beef, which will arrive every day.

The men will have fresh bread every day, the field oven being in full working order under Lieut. Charles J. Duffy.

The location of the camp gives ample facilities for sea bathing and Capt. Wheeler has also established shower baths.

The horses, which have been brought down for the use of the officers, are a good looking lot of animals and it is hoped that they will have themselves as well on the field as they did on the voyage over to the island. They were examined by Lieut. A. W. May, veterinary surgeon.

Both at New Bedford and at Edgartown there was a large crowd of spectators to welcome the troops and a few de jole was fired as the steamer came out of New Bedford harbor.

Sixth Regiment Band

The Sixth Regiment band of this city, the only band which has the distinction of having taken the federal oath, accompanied the Lowell boys, and will give band concerts afternoons and evenings. The list of sports will be carried out under the direction of Capt. Walter R. Jeyes and Regimental Adjutant James Powers both of this city, who have outlined the following program:

Relay race for first prize cup and medals to the men of the winning team, and umbrellas for the men of the team finishing second; baseball series for a trophy cup; rescue race for two prize cups and two medals; swimming race for a smoking set and a cigar stand; 220 yard dash for a cup and an umbrella; running broad jump for a wrist watch and a gold medal; equipment race for a cup and a bronze fob and a tug of war for a cup and three medals. Other events will include the 100 yard dash, 440 yard run, shot put, broad jump and centipede race.

The roster of the regiment is as follows: Lieut. Col. Herbert W. Damon commanding; Maj. William H. Dolan, Capt. William G. Pond, and Capt. James M. Greig.

Staff: First Lieut. J. J. Powers, acting adjutant; Capt. James Glass, medical department; Capt. William F. Desseault, chaplain; Capt. Lewis G. Hutton, Q.D.; Capt. James H. Keough. Battalion adjutants: First Lieut. Oscar W. Fosberg, Second Lieut. Edgar B. Hawkes, Second Lieut. George F. Seamon.

Battalion quartermasters and commissaries: Second Lieut. Harrie C. Perry, Second Lieut. Winfred C. MacBrayne.

Company A, Wakefield, Capt. Edward J. Connolly.

Company B, Framingham, Capt. Geo. W. Sullivan, First Lieut. Ernest Release.

Company C, Lowell, Capt. Geo. W. Peterson, Second Lieut. Charles J. Duffy.

Company D, Fitchburg, First Lieut. James F. Coburn.

Company E, Framingham, Capt. Geo. W. Sullivan, First Lieut. Ernest Release.

Company F, Marlboro, First Lieut. Aaron W. Hosmer, Second Lieut. W. H. Stiles.

Company G, Lowell, Capt. Walter R. Jeyes.

Company H, Stoneham, Second Lieut. Alfred Belcher.

Company I, Concord, First Lieut. Thomas H. Mansfield.

Company K, Lowell, First Lieut. Melvin F. Masters.

Company L, Boston, Capt. J. Holman Prior, First Lieut. Joseph G. Holmes.

Company M, Milford, Second Lieut. Harry W. Seaton.

HOLIDAYS POSTPONED

WORKING PEOPLE OF GREAT BRITAIN ACCEPT DECISION OF THE GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Aug. 7.—With the exception of a portion of the coal miners of South Wales and the cotton brokers of Lancashire, the British working people today loyally accepted the decision of the government, that holidays should be postponed until the demand for munitions was not urgent. The South Wales miners' unions decided early last week to observe today—Bank holiday—one of Great Britain's national holidays, as usual, but later reversed their decision upon representations by the authorities that coal was necessary to the continued working of the munition factories.

Despite this decision, holiday bookings this morning broke all records. Thousands of numbers and families left for the seaside, a step which means that many mines will be worked only part time for the most of this week. In the cities business was carried on as usual, while the munition factories worked at full pressure.

INJURED IN AIR SERVICE

NASHUA MAN HURT IN FALL IN AEROPLANE IN FRANCE—MANY WAR EXPERIENCES

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 7.—William J. Hartford, 25, arrived in this city yesterday from England, having been discharged from the British army after a year of service in the air. He was born in Haverhill, Mass., and enlisted in the British infantry, Nov. 17, 1914. On account of his ability as a machinist he was soon transferred to the Royal Flying Corps. He was for a time at the base of the corps at South Farnborough, Eng., and later crossed by the air route to France. After his injury he was taken to the base hospital in France, and thence to a hospital in England, where he obtained his discharge.

FIND BODY IN PASTURE

FREDERICK H. STEVENS OF WEST NEWBURY HANGED HIMSELF—HAD BEEN MISSING SOME TIME

WEST NEWBURY, Aug. 7.—The body of Frederick H. Stevens, of 33 Kent's court, who disappeared from his home on July 26, after telling his father that he had taken poison, was found yesterday under a tree in a pasture about two miles from his home. Apparently Stevens had ended his life by hanging, using his suspenders for the purpose. The straps had broken, allowing the body to fall to the ground. The medical examiner stated that death was due to strangulation. A singular thing about the case is that the place where Stevens' body was found had been thoroughly covered by searchers without result. It is supposed that the young man while suffering mentally wandered about the woods several days before ending his life.

NEW SUPER-DREADNOUGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The new super-dreadnought Oklahoma will join the Atlantic fleet at Newport, R. I., today. She left here yesterday to take her place with the other big warships of the first division. It is expected she will have a cruise of about three weeks to give her company of about 1000 officers and men a chance to become acquainted with her. The Oklahoma has been here for a few months completing her equipment. Two 3-inch anti-aircraft guns were added to her equipment just before she left here. It is said that she is the first vessel of the United States navy to be so equipped.

CELEBRATED THE FOURTH CHASED BY SUBMARINES

STORY OF HOW AMERICANS, IN SPITE OF MANY OBSTACLES, OBSERVED THE DAY

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 20 (Correspondence)—Americans who arrived in Scandinavia recently on the steamer Bergensford told of a decidedly unique celebration of the Fourth of July on board that vessel.

On the third of July the Bergensford, a Norwegian ship, was "captured" by a British cruiser and escorted into Kirkwall for the customary examination of cargo and passengers. Despite the fact that they were to be "captives" over the Fourth in a British harbor, the passengers decided to celebrate the day and to renew the Declaration of Independence.

All the neutrals on board decided to join the Americans and Capt. Irgens of the Bergensford appointed a committee to arrange everything.

The hour set for the ceremonies was 11 o'clock the morning of the Fourth. It was found at that time, however, that the British authorities required the presence of all first class passengers, and the reading of the Declaration was postponed until 2 o'clock. At this hour the ceremonies were begun anew. "America" was sung, a short prayer was offered and then Captain Irgens arose.

"I regret it very much," he announced, "but the Declaration of Independence must again be postponed, as the British authorities require the presence of the second class passengers in their dining room."

At 3 o'clock the ship's company assembled again to hear proclaimed the principles of a free and independent people. But again Capt. Irgens arose. "I regret again to have to announce a further postponement of the Declaration of Independence, but the British authorities, who did not recognize the Fourth of July as a holiday, say they must have the third class passengers in their dining saloon at once."

Forty-five minutes later the British authorities had conceded their excuse. The neutrals and this time the Declaration was read amid great enthusiasm.

The Bergensford, however, and the Americans aboard her, remained in "captivity" until the afternoon of the fifth.

LORD WIMBORNE AGAIN

HAS BEEN REAPPOINTED LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND—DECLARATION OF CONFIDENCE

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Lord Wimborne has been reappointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

TRIUMPH FOR WIMBORNE

Reappointment to Ireland a Declaration of Confidence by British Government

The reappointment of Lord Wimborne to be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is a declaration of confidence by the British government that he was in no way implicated in the Sinn Féin rebellion in Dublin last spring. He served as Lord Lieutenant from January, 1915, till early last May, when he resigned owing to feeling expressed in some quarters that the rebellion had been the result of a too lenient policy on his part.

A royal commission which made an investigation to ascertain who was to blame, early in July reported, completely exonerating Lord Wimborne and his chief secretary for Ireland, Mr. Birrell, responsible for the emergency policy that led to the outbreak.

Lord Wimborne, who is the second Baron of that name, is grandson of the seventh duke of Marlborough. He was born 43 years ago, served in the South African war 17 years ago, was high sheriff of Glamorganshire at one time, represented Plymouth and Cardiff in parliament, has been paymaster general of the army, became privy councillor in 1910 and in 1914 he was married 14 years to a daughter of Baron Bury. There are three children.

Baron Wimborne is credited with being a very affable, but deficient in a sense of humor, which, when he was first sent to Ireland, was declared indispensable for a man destined to administer the government of the Emerald Isle.

He has been a noted polo player, and only a few weeks before the outbreak of the present war brought to this country a polo team which lifted the international cup that had been won five years before by an American team in England.

DUEL ON ASTOR ESTATE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 7.—After a revolver duel lasting 15 minutes on the Woods road in Poughkeepsie, Vincent Astor's Rhinebeck estate, early yesterday, a man believed by the Dutchess county authorities to be responsible for the recent burglaries at the mansions of wealthy residents of Rhinebeck fell from two wounds in the abdomen inflicted by Deputy Sheriff Michael T. Baumbush and James Downing, a private detective.

The injured man, who refuses to make any statement, is dying from his wounds.

SUNDAY'S AUTO DEATHS

FIVE PERSONS WERE KILLED AND MANY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Five persons were killed in yesterday's auto accidents. They were: Thomas MacLellan, 75, of Chatham, Tenn., struck by car at Manomet; Ralph E. Estes, 22, of 247 Main street, Bradford, pinned under car between Pine Hill and Andover; Albert L. Douglas, 41, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., crushed by overturned truck, near his home; Amilio Guerra, 25, Sherborn, thrown from motorcycle in Framingham; James McManis, 22, of 12 Hanson street, Salem, swept from running board of street car in Salem.

WINTHROP, Aug. 7.—When a woman's nerve interfered yesterday, a light touring car containing six persons knocked down and ran over a mother and daughter, raced through an open lot for several feet and finally turned over into a pit, a drop of about 15 feet.

This was Winthrop's second automobile accident in less than 24 hours, in which there were narrow escapes from death. In addition to those run down, everyone of the occupants of the automobile was more or less seriously hurt. The injured were:

Mrs. Ellen Barron, aged 41, of 5 Myrtle avenue, broken leg and abrasions; Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, aged 40, of 450 Revere street, crushed chest and possible internal injuries; Miss Katherine Fitzgerald, aged 15, of 150 Revere street, abrasions to the body, face, arms and legs.

Miss Helen Barron, aged 9, of 5 Myrtle avenue, abrasions to the head and body; Miss Geraldine Barter, aged 11, of 100 Locust street, severe injuries to the back, head and legs; Miss Mary G. Fitzpatrick, aged 35, of 100 Locust street, bruises to the legs and body and nervous shock.

Miss Anna Devereux, aged 35, of 25 Beach road, broken sprains of the back and abrasions to legs and arms; Miss Margaret Carty, aged 34, of 64 Locust street, shock and possible internal injuries.

Lost Control of Machine

The accident happened at the corner of Locust street and Revere street. A touring car, owned by Fred Cook of 25 Beach road and operated by his daughter, Miss Anna Devereux, came along Crest avenue at a moderate speed and turned sharply into Revere street to go up by Fort Banks.

In front with Miss Devereux was Geraldine Barter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Barter. Seated in the rear were Miss Fitzpatrick, Miss Carty, Mrs. Barron and her daughter, Helen Barron.

Walking on the farther sidewalk on Revere street, coming from church, were Mrs. Fitzgerald and her 15-year-old daughter, Katherine.

Miss Devereux, who has been driving an automobile since a short while, the police say, seemed to become unnerved by their presence and lost control of the machine.

Runs Over Girl, Lands in Cellar

Before she could regain control the car had rolled over. One of the forward mudguards struck Mrs. Fitzgerald in the chest and knocked her down. Katherine was bowled over, the car passing over her body.

With the occupants of the runaway machine screaming for help, the car rolled unchecked into the field and turned over, ending up in the cellar of the old Argle stable, which was destroyed by fire several years ago.

While still pinned beneath the machine, Miss Devereux made a brave but futile attempt to raise it off the Barter girl, who was bleeding freely from a score of wounds on her head and body and legs. The Barron girl, though beneath the car, was only slightly hurt.

The crash and screams of the frightened women were heard all over the Highlands.

John H. Flynn, assistant clerk of the supreme court, who lives at 15 Crest avenue, saw the accident from his home and, without waiting to see what happened, put in an emergency call for doctors and the police. Nelson E. Hayden, who lives nearby, and Dr. J. H. Gooding of Boston, who was passing in his automobile, were among the first to reach the injured women.

With Edward Fox of Sagamore avenue they raised the car and dragged out Miss Devereux, who was very hysterical and the Barter and Barron girls. Others assisted Mrs. Barron.

Hurried to Hospital

Once released, Miss Devereux, though badly bruised, attended to Miss Fitzpatrick and Miss Carty, both of whom were badly hurt.

Dr. B. H. McCall, Dr. Raymond Parker, Dr. Charles F. Mahoney and Patrolman John J. McDonald arrived quickly in automobiles. Winthrop was so much thing as an ambulance, hence the injured were placed in the physicians' cars and taken to the Metcalf hospital about a mile and half across the town.

When they arrived Dr. Edward J. Grainger and Dr. Norman St. George were waiting with Rev. John J. O'Brien of the Church of St. John the Evangelist. It was found that Mrs. Barron had a fracture of the left leg and was covered from head to foot with bruises.

Fully 15 stitches were required to close the several wounds on the arms and legs of the Barter girl, who, according to her father, was released from the hospital only a short while ago after having a needle extracted from her body.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was badly hurt about the chest, and it is feared she is suffering from internal injuries. Her daughter Katherine was cut about the face, arms and legs. Miss Devereux, Miss Carty, Miss Fitzpatrick and the Barron girl, who suffered sim-

WOMAN HURT IN WOBURN

Mrs. Kee, Mother of Mrs. George W. Taylor of Chelsea Taken to Hospital in Serious Condition

WOBURN, Aug. 7.—In a collision between two autos on Cambridge street yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kee, mother of Mrs. George W. Taylor of 129 Clark avenue, Chelsea, was so seriously injured that at a late hour last evening it was reported at Choate Memorial hospital that she was still unconscious.

One of the autos involved was owned and operated by Lewis K. Walters of 194 Parker street, Somerville; the other was driven by George W. Taylor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Taylor and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kee.

Mrs. Kee was thrown from the auto by the shock, suffering concussion of the brain, if not more serious injuries. No one else was hurt. The Taylor auto was badly damaged.

THE GREEK COMMUNITY

OFFICERS OF GREEK COMMUNITY TO BE ELECTED BY VOTERS INSTEAD OF DIRECTORS

A lively meeting of the members of the local Greek community was held in Associate hall yesterday afternoon with President George Zeppos in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, including the passing of a vote to hold a general election on Labor day, and several changes in the by-laws of the community.

The meeting was opened at 1 o'clock with a large attendance, only registered voters being admitted. It was voted to have the various officers of the community elected by the voters instead of by the directors, and in order to bring peace in the community it was also voted to hold a general election of officers on Labor day. It was also voted that each voter of the community shall after the present year pay dues of 25 cents a month.

With the idea of securing a collection of such dues, a collector will be appointed at a wage of $15 a week. Any person who is registered as a voter and who fails to pay his dues six months in succession will be declared ineligible to further membership.

PROTEST TO GERMANY

POPE TO ASK BERLIN THAT WOMEN AND GIRLS BE RETURNED TO HOMES IN FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The pope, after a careful study of the protest against the deportation of inhabitants of northern France, has decided to make a protest to Germany, according to a news despatch from Rome received here.

The protest was sent to the pope by the bishop of Lille and the archbishop of Rheims. It is stated that the pope will ask Berlin that at least women and young girls be sent back to their homes and that he will publicly express his reprobation of the action of the German military authorities if his protest is ignored.

FRENCH "SNAPPED" BY PHOTOGRAPHER AS THEY CHARGE GERMAN POSITION

BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION
FROM MEDEM

This war photograph, one of the most remarkable to reach this country recently from the war zones, shows French soldiers, wearing the new steel helmet, advancing through a hail of fire from German machine guns shooting through embrasures in the crest of the ridge above them. The picture is official, made with the authority of the French government and was taken in the very midst of recent fighting around Verdun, where the French are reported to have made further advances in furious attacks on the German lines.

INT. SOCIALIST BUREAU

THE HAGUE, July. — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — "If the International Socialist Bureau has not as yet succeeded in bringing the Austro-German and allied socialists together, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor certainly could not accomplish the task," says Camille Huysmans, secretary of the International Socialist Bureau, to a correspondent of The Associated Press, in answer to a proposal of Mr. Gompers to hold a world labor conference during the progress of the peace conference following the war.

Mr. Huysmans pointed out that any international conference without the participation of the British and French socialists would be a farce in that its decisions would be entirely lacking in influence.

He declared his belief that Mr. Gompers' proposal at present is impracticable, and he deprecated the idea of the American or International Trade Union organizations trespassing on the political domain of the socialist international bureau. He declared that such a conference would have to be held under the auspices of the latter organization, and naturally he would approve of such a congress if the British and French were willing to participate.

"The socialists constitute the center of gravity in the matter of influencing the war and when they are ready to act," Mr. Huysmans declared, "a congress should be held even without awaiting the peace conference." He believes, however, that the war will continue until next year, considering the great obstacles to peace that are apparent at present.

The Dutch socialist organ, Het Volk, applauds Mr. Gompers' idea, but doubts the practicability of such a plan under the auspices of the socialist international bureau. It asks whether he is acting after consultation with President Legien of German International Trade Union Alliance, "who might regard it as undesirable to advocate the plan himself for comprehensible reasons."

RESTRICTED USE OF COFFEE

VIENNA, July. — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — The long-dreaded restriction in the use of coffee — which is to Vienna what beer is to Munich — has come at last, bringing with it coffee cards entitling each person over four years of age to half a pound of coffee a week and confiscation of all the coffee now on hand to prevent hoarding.

The government order announcing the step contained one saving clause, however. It exempts from restriction

"EXCHANGE" INVALID

VIENNA DOCTOR AFTER 15 MONTHS OF CAPTIVITY FINDS HIMSELF NOBEL PRIZE WINNER

VIENNA, July. — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — Entering the war as a volunteer surgeon little known outside the circle of specialists of his own class, Dr. Robert Barany of Vienna, after fifteen months of captivity in Russia, has at last returned as an "exchange invalid" to find himself famous as the Nobel prize winner in medicine.

The knowledge which was the basis of his prize-winning book was gained chiefly as surgeon in Przemysl; the book itself was written in captivity; it has brought him 400,000 crowns in money; and it played no small part in securing his release from Turkey.

The dramatic circumstances surrounding his achievement have greatly heightened the effect of his return to his family. Nominally he was permitted to leave Russia because he is slightly lame from an affection of one foot from which he has suffered since a child. Actually his unexpected distinction, plus the efforts of Prince Karl of Sweden, went far to secure his exchange.

Despite his lameness, Dr. Barany volunteered for service at the outbreak of the war, and was detailed as chief surgeon of the surgical department of a hospital in Przemysl. It was while there, as he modestly explains, that he was "so fortunate as to discover a new method for the treatment of head wounds," a discovery that enabled him to cure a vastly greater percentage of cases than before.

For four weeks after the fall of Przemysl the Russian commander allowed the Austrian physicians to remain. Then in transports of about 100 they were sent to various parts of Russia, many to Siberia, the surgeon and many others to Turkestan. Unlike many others, Dr. Barany on his return has reported almost universally good treatment in captivity, treatment that included a sufficiency of decent food, liberty not restricted, and pleasant professional relations with Russian commanders and colleagues.

Dr. Barany was given fairly ample opportunity to study, to practice, and to lecture on his specialty to Russian and captive Austrial physicians.

THE MIDDLESEX NORTH

BIG COMEBACK OF COUNTY FAIR TO BE STAGED AT GOLDEN COVE

The Lowell Driving club and the committee from the Middlesex North are leaving no stone unturned in their preparation for the revival of the Middlesex North Agricultural fair to be held at the club's splendidly appointed park at Golden Cove, Chelmsford, in September. The half-mile track will be in the pink of condition for the races in which some of the best horses in this section of the country will participate. The fair will last for three days and the festivities will be opened by the mayor, who will make a short address of welcome. Governor McCall and Congressman Rogers have been invited, and the following communications addressed to Oscar C. Dewell, one of the very active workers in connection with the fair comeback, are self-explanatory:

State House, Boston, Aug. 3, 1916.
Mr. Oscar C. Dewell, 1981 Middlesex Street, Lowell, Mass.
My Dear Sir: Governor McCall directs me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 24, for three days and the festivities will be opened by the mayor, who will make a short address of welcome. Governor McCall and Congressman Rogers have been invited, and the following communications addressed to Oscar C. Dewell, one of the very active workers in connection with the fair comeback, are self-explanatory:

Yours very truly,

Stanley R. Miller,
Secretary to the Governor.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 4, 1916.
Mr. Oscar C. Dewell, 1981 Middlesex Street, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Oscar: I am just in receipt via Washington of your letter of the 2nd inst. inviting me to attend the fair of the Middlesex North Agricultural association and the Lowell Driving club, Sept. 16, next. I am very greatly obliged for your kindness in inviting me there, and, providing congress has adjourned by that time, I shall be present on that day. It is expected that congress will probably adjourn the latter part of this month or early in September and unless some emergency should arise requiring me to be in Washington at that time, I shall hope to spend the afternoon of Sept. 15 at Golden Cove park.

With renewed thanks for the invitation and kindest personal regards, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

John Jacob Rogers.

Big Races Saturday

The Lowell Driving club is arranging a fine card of races for Saturday afternoon at Golden Cove and a list of entries will appear later. The driving club of Reading will send 15 horses, and it is expected that the meet will be one of the best in the history of the club.

Members of the local club complain that they are not receiving the hearty co-operation they expected from business men and others. The business men of the city of Springfield contributed $15,000 towards the construction and maintenance of a track in the city, but the Lowell club is not fortunate enough to receive such generous support. Club members allow, however, that after the business men realize that the club will be instrumental in bringing new trade to Lowell there will be something doing on the contributions. It is expected that the revival of the life fair will bring a great many strangers to Lowell.

The Savannah women's branch of the National Red Cross has the largest membership of any branch thus far organized in the south.

The supplies needed by restaurants and coffee houses, which means that Vienna will still be able to pursue its favorite pastime of sipping coffee "black" or "brown" on the sidewalk in front of the innumerable resorts that line every boulevard and street.

Each coffee store, wholesale and retail, has been required to notify the authorities of its exact supply of coffee over 100 kilograms (220 lbs.). The excess in each case is then subject to the control of a "coffee central," which in future will regulate the disposal of the coffee to the public, and have charge with it coffee cards entitling each person over four years of age to half a pound of coffee a week and confiscation of all the coffee now on hand to prevent hoarding.

The government order announcing the step contained one saving clause, however. It exempts from restriction

GEORGE A. GARDNER DEAD

PHILANTHROPIST WHOSE GENEROSITY SAVED THOUSANDS FROM WANT, DIED AT 87

BOSTON, Aug. 7. — George Augustus Gardner, loved in name by thousands who were saved from want and suffering during the hard winters of 1913-14 and 1914-15 by his generosity, and esteemed by a great many others who knew of his private charities, died yesterday at his home, 51 Commonwealth avenue, at the age of 87 years. He was in poor health a week ago Saturday and able to go out driving. Yesterday he had an attack of heart failure. Members of his family were at his bedside when he died.

Mayor Curly made known Mr. Gardner's identity as the mysterious "Mr. Smith," who gave $10,000 one winter and $5000 the next for the employment of needy men, and whom he called "the best citizen of the best city in the country." Modesty had cloaked the identity of the donor, but on the completion of the esplanade at Marine park, the mayor told his name in order that he could name the new boulevard "Gardner Way." To relieve the same oppression of the second winter it was Mr. Gardner who gave $10,000 to different Protestant charities, $1000 to Catholic and $1000 to Jewish charities. At the time Mr. Gardner said he regretted his name had been mentioned but he confessed that the expressed thankfulness at the dedication exercises had more than repaid him in happiness what he had done merely from a sense of duty.

He was born Sept. 30, 1829, son of John Lowell Gardner and Catherine Endicott (Peabody) Gardner. He attended Boston Latin school and Harvard, whence he was graduated in 1849. He married in 1854, Eliza Endicott Peabody of Salem. She died Jan. 13, 1877. They had seven children, including George Peabody Gardner, who married Esther Burnett, daughter of Joseph Burnett of Southboro; Ellen Gardner, who married Augustus P. Loring of Beverly; John Lowell Gardner, William Endicott Gardner and Olga Eliza Gardner, who married Dr. George M. Monk of Boston.

John L. Gardner, who died in 1898, and whose wife, Mrs. Isabelle Stewart Gardner, built the famous Italian palace in the Fenway, was his brother. Another brother was the late Joseph Peabody Gardner, who married Harriet Sears Amory, and whose children, nephews of the deceased, include Congressman Augustus Peabody Gardner, William Amory Gardner of Groton and the late Joseph Peabody Gardner, Jr. His sister, Julia, married J. Randolph Condit, and their son, J. Randolph Condit, Jr., Boston architect and former president of the chamber of commerce, is a nephew.

Business Activities

George A. Gardner was the last surviving charter member of the Somerset club. He was a member of the St. Raphael and Country clubs. His early career he devoted to shipping and he was interested in a number of fast clipper ships that then sailed the seas under the United States flag. With the decline of the sailing vessels he turned to railroads, banking and real estate. He served as vice president of the Provident Institution for Savings and as a director in the old Colony railroad, Boston & Lowell railroad, Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance company and the Merchants National bank of Boston.

He was one of the 19 heaviest taxpayers in Boston, both on his own real estate and that held as trustee. His annual tax on his own real estate amounted to nearly $25,000. He owned a summer estate at Monmouth beach and a group of islands 40 miles east of Bar Harbor. He had a beautiful estate on Roque island, one of the group, and a few days before he died was planning to go there.

FIRE IN N. Y. SUN PLANT

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. — Five large presses, on which the New York Sun is printed, were so badly damaged last night by a fire which started in the sub-basement of the Sun building, that today's editions were run off on the presses of the Evening Mail.

PRESIDENT LOOKS TO MEDIATION BOARD TO AVERT BIG RAILROAD STRIKE

Upper: MARTIN A. KNAPP AND W. W. HANGER. Insert: W. L. CHAMBERS

President Wilson decided that he would make no move toward preventing the prospective strike of 400,000 railway trainmen until after it had been shown that the railroad conference committee of managers and the representatives of the railway brotherhoods, meeting in New York on Aug. 8, was unable to harmonize the differences growing out of the demands of the brotherhoods. President Wilson's deep interest in the effort to prevent the big strike was indicated when he sent for Judge William L. Chambers, commissioner of the board of mediation and conciliation, and asked him to explain the situation in detail. The two other members of the board are Martin A. Knapp and W. W. Hanger.

GUARDSMEN TO VOTE

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE CONNECTICUT LEGISLATURE TO TAKE ACTION

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 7. — A special session of the legislature will probably be called by Gov. Holcomb to meet the latter part of next month to take such action as may be necessary to enable the members of the Connecticut National Guard at the Mexican border to vote in the November elections if the men are still on the border at that time.

Gov. Holcomb, who is now in Maine on a vacation, is understood to have reached this decision after a conference with the attorney general before leaving for Maine and it is expected that the call will be issued on his return to his fire here.

BIG FIRE IN JERSEY CITY

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 7. — A spectacular fire which the police believe was incendiary, broke out last night in the railroad yards in the Claremont section of the city, a quarter of a mile from the scene of the Black Tom explosion last Sunday. About 15 freight cars loaded with merchandise were destroyed.

The blaze could be seen for miles around, giving rise to wild rumors that spread rapidly in Jersey City. One report was that more explosives at Black Tom were menaced and persons living in the vicinity became greatly alarmed.

Lack of water hampered the firefighters and they were compelled to fight the flame with steam obtained from locomotives.

The fire was discovered in two cars of commercial acids which were saved from the Black Tom fire, although the roofs of the cars had been blown off.

OIL OPERATOR MURDERED

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 7. — Finding of the mutilated body of Charles Vaughn, wealthy oil operator, in the tannery of his automobile at Hoffman Saturday night started a mob of several hundred oil workers in search of his slayer, with the avowed intention of lynching him.

A man, his clothing covered with what appeared to be blood, was arrested and taken to Okmulgee, toward which place men from the oil fields were reported to be marching.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

Representatives of four clubs, one from this city, one from Lawrence and two from Manchester, N. H., met at Club Citizens-Americans in Middle street yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of affiliating the various French-American clubs of New England. The delegates at the meeting were Maximo Lepine and John Durand, Club Citizens-Americans; C. J. Belanger, Esq., and Ernest Bourneville, Club Joliet, Manchester; Eugene Wuerin and Honore Gaudin, Cercle National, Manchester; and Napoleon Dufresne and Edmond Goulet, Club Naturalization, Lawrence.

The meeting was opened by John Durand, who was later chosen chairman of the committee, while Ernest Bourneville was chosen secretary. After a thorough explanation of the objects and benefits to be derived from such an affiliation, it was voted to make the committee permanent and invite all Franco-American clubs of New England to send delegates in an endeavor to form what will be known as the Affiliated Franco-American Social clubs of America.

Candidates for public office in California are first inspected by the women who give them the "once over" before election time.

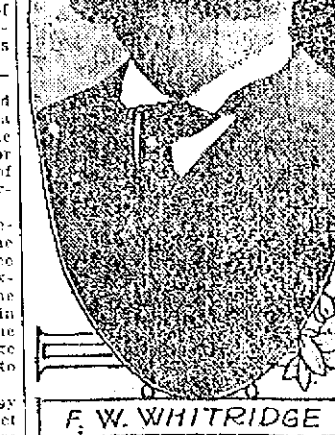

Miss Esther Cleveland, daughter of the late President Cleveland, is now in London where she has thrown herself heart and soul into her work as a volunteer helper in a hospital for the blind soldiers.

STRIKE BRINGS ALL NEW YORK FACE TO FACE WITH POSSIBILITY OF WALKING TO WORK

STRIKE SCENE IN NEW YORK CITY

The strike on the surface car lines of New York city, which threatened to tie up the entire transportation systems of the city unless checked speedily, began when the men of the lines in Westchester county went out. Thence the trouble spread to the borough of the Bronx, which has about 600,000 inhabitants. Next to fall in line were the motormen and conductors of the Manhattan street cars, and they proclaimed their belief that they could call out the workers of the subways and elevated railroads. The surface car men on strike numbered 5450, and the passengers elevated on their lines in normal times is estimated at 2,500,000 daily. The elevated and subway lines more than double these figures. The American Federation of Labor is trying to find a basis of adjustment of the men's demands, the chief of which is recognition of their right to organize into unions. The public service commission, which has been holding an inquiry into the events leading up to the strike of motormen and conductors employed by the Third Avenue Railroad company, ruled that Frederick W. Whitridge, president of the company, was to blame for the strike. The commission found that Mr. Whitridge "either intentionally violated" an agreement he had made to arbitrate labor troubles with his employees "or that he was as negligent in his duties to his stockholders, his employees and the public as to forget entirely his important agreement." But for this oversight or negligence on Mr. Whitridge's part the city would not be confronted with the present transit situation, the commission held. This statement drew a protest from Alfred A. Cook, counsel for the Third Avenue Railroad company.

F. W. WHITRIDGE

PITCHER JOE BUSH IS LOYAL TO THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7. — If virtue is its own reward and the good get joy out of knowing they are spotless then Joe Bush of the Athletics should be happy and sleep well, whatever happens. While other players of Connie Mack's golden days have sulked or "retired" because of the passing of world's series prospects, Bush has remained loyal to the core, giving Mack always his best, whatever the backing behind him and without regard to discouraging incidents. He has shown his real greatness as a pitcher and as a man, and high tribute is due him. Only recently has come the report that offers have been made to the Athletics for Bush that would put him with a team with championship chances, but as the story comes from Philadelphia Bush has told Mack he is willing to stick it out to the bitter end — one out of all the coterie of players that owe what they are to Connie Mack who has shown appreciation and loyalty.

RURAL SCHOOL TERM NEW YORK CAR STRIKE

FARM BOY AND FARM GIRL DISCRIMINATED AGAINST IN MATTER OF SCHOOL TERMS

The lack of equal school privileges for the farm boy and the farm girl as compared with the school privileges provided for the city boy and the city girl, in length of school term, in equipment, in professional supervision, and in the qualification of teachers, are injustices that must have to be tolerated in a despotism, but are discriminations that should have no place in a government of the people, by the people and for the people. But we are not through yet with the length of the school term as one of the rankest discriminations against the farm boy and the farm girl in our public school policy.

The per cent of daily attendance of every 100 pupils enrolled in the rural schools of Maryland, according to the bulletin of the bureau of education, 1913, No. 8, entitled "The Status of Rural Education in the United States," by A. C. Monahan, is only 51 per cent, the lowest percentage of attendance in the rural schools of all states in the Union. Delaware comes next with 51.4 per cent. Colorado ranks third with 53.6 per cent. The three states ranking highest in percentage of daily attendance in the rural schools are as follows: Oregon, 98.5; Connecticut, 88.4; Massachusetts, 86.1. It is evident, therefore, that Maryland, with the lowest percentage of rural school attendance, is 35.6 per cent below Oregon, with the highest percentage of rural school attendance.

If the rural school attendance were raised from 51.6 per cent—the average daily attendance in the rural public schools of the United States—to 90.6 per cent, the average daily attendance in the rural public schools of Oregon, it would mean an increase of the rural school term in effect and in the aggregate for the country at large of 23 per cent. It would mean that 51 per cent of the actual enrollment, as in the case of Oregon, is a sufficient allowance for all reasonable absences—such as sickness, necessity of pupils being absent to work on the farm in order to properly support the family, and all other reasonable excuses. Oregon has found it so. What Oregon has done every other state in the Union can do if it only will. Who is ready to say that every state should not do this for the farm boy and the farm girl?

Rural Pupils Penalized

One thing to be remembered in connection with the rural school term, as concerns the country at large, is that farm boys and farm girls have a school term 46.6 days shorter than that of their city cousins. In every section of the United States there is a discrimination in our public school policy against farm boys and farm girls. For example, this discrimination costs the country pupils of the South Atlantic states 59.2 days, of the North Atlantic states 35.4, of the western states 35.7, and of the North Atlantic division 28.3 days, in the language of G. W. Neate, professor of rural education, State Normal school, Stevens Point, Wis. "The first thing we go into the study of the rural school term the more evident it becomes that the country pupils deal in unequal school privileges."

In effect and for the country at large the rural school term may be increased without voting another day of school or levying another mill of school tax. How can this be done? Improve the average daily attendance of the pupils actually enrolled in school by a better enforcement of the compulsory attendance laws in those states having such laws, and by securing compulsory attendance laws at the next session of the legislature in those states without such laws. By arousing public sentiment throughout the country for a better average daily attendance in our rural schools. The enrollment of pupils in the rural schools, according to the latest available data (1910) in rural school enrollment, was 11,000,552, with an average daily attendance therein of 7,592,558, making the average daily attendance in the rural schools alone 3,599,995. These figures, 7,592,558, with an average daily attendance therein of 7,592,558, making the country at large is only 67.6 per cent, an average daily attendance of 11.7 per cent lower than that in urban schools. It is evident that rural pupils are penalized in this matter of school privileges not only by the general policy of the various states, but also by indifferent, ignorant or selfish parents who fail to do their duty by their own children in allowing them to remain out of school while school is in session.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Miss Daisy Davies, president of the female college at La Grange, Ga., is the first woman to occupy that office in the history of the institution.

Miss Henrietta Mills, of Kansas City, is manager of a theatrical company which is going the rounds of the moving picture houses in that city presenting old-time melodramas.

Mrs. L. L. Wilson, principal of a Philadelphia high school for girls, recently unearthed an ancient community house in New Mexico, which is claimed to be over a thousand years old.

SHORTS AND HEDLEY ARE LEADING FIGURES IN THE GREAT STRIKE

Photos by American Press Assn.

T. P. SHONTS (Upper) and FRANK HEDLEY (Lower)

Two of the most prominent men in the great transit strike in New York City are pictured in the cut. Above is Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Metropolitan company, which operates the subway and elevated lines and most of the surface lines in the city. The lower picture is that of Frank Hedley, general manager of the New York City Railway company, in direct charge of the surface lines in Manhattan borough. Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees asserted that Messrs. Shonts and Hedley would "receive the surprise of their lives" when reports were brought to them of the boast of Mr. Shonts and Mr. Hedley that they had received assurances that 94 per cent of their men would remain loyal to the company.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. K. KEITH THEATRE
"The Beggar of Cawnpore," a thrilling play based on the historical subject of the Sepoy mutiny in India, during the middle of the last century, will be shown at the B. K. Keith theatre, beginning this afternoon. Correct in every detail, it is given the benefit of superb acting. Henry B. Warner, one of the most eminent of modern actors, plays the part of the English physician, who is forced to suffer greatly in order to save his sweetheart from being massacred. The turning point in the mutiny, where the British troops arrive and quell the rebellion, is vividly pictured. Billie Burke will appear in the 11th chapter of "Gloria's Romance," and for the first time a clue appears as to the whereabouts of the murderer of "Freddie." Excellent acting and fine scenery. The comedy picture of the program will be "His Bread and Butter," with Hank Mann in the principal part.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Today's continuous afternoon and evening performance at this popular theatre opens upon the biggest photograph star in the history of the stage. One of the finest combinations of renowned screen actors and actresses ever selected will appear. The week-end performance of the trial is followed by a picture which will happen when everybody brings everybody this week. The marvelous Mary Pickford will star in a lovely melodrama, "Hilda From Holland," a picture of the most unusual production even for this versatile little actress, who is talked of from coast to coast to the other. Mary in wooden shoes! Clumping and bumping about the famous Players studio, the celebrated actress is a delightful and amusing sight, but not so uproariously funny as she will be on the screen when she appears in this play of genuine appeal to all. Those who are accustomed to connect her name with delicate comedy and real patches will not be disappointed when she appears in "Hilda From Holland," with this delightful romantic comedy-drama. Embellished with the appeal for which Miss Pickford is celebrated. But it is all dressed up in a new form of presentation and in a new guise that is original in treatment that even those who have seen the star in every one of her great successes will find much that is new and more that is fascinating in this production. Little Hilda is left in sole charge of her three little brothers by the death of her parents, and she finds it hard work to keep their little Holland home together. Finally word comes from her wealthy uncle in Pennsylvania that he will be glad to have them make their home with him. They are met by the uncle in New York but he is injured and taken to the hospital where he remains unidentified, an occasion which leaves the four alone in the big city. But a kind landlady comes to her assistance until chance brings Mary in contact with a young artist, who comes into the story in various and unconventional ways, but has a remarkable effect on the ultimate outcome of the world's most talked of girl in the world, who appears in this "land of tulip bulbs."

Also showing on the same program are the favorites of two countries appearing by request and demand. These are "The Star of the Golden Chance," which is a play of modern life in its various shades. Miss Ridgely as a poor seamstress suddenly confronted with an opportunity to escape for a brief period the luxuries of life and to forget her own poverty grasps at the chance. Cinderella-like she meets a successful millionaire who falls in love with her. Circumstances compel the seamstress to hide her real identity and refuse her golden chance. Subsequently however in complications are overcome after a series of exciting and dramatic situations and the audience is given to believe that all ends happily.

Beautiful travel pictures from all around the world will be shown in the Palace News, and more of the screaming comedy portraits will be shown for three days only, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and no doubt seating capacity will be limited.

ROYAL THEATRE
To obtain realism, the Vitaphone company erected a building in the lot opposite their studio and equipped it with a picture store designed for the "punch" in "The Western Wall," their latest Visc release, which will be shown today and tomorrow at the Royal theatre. The set remained three days, waiting for a change in the direction of the wind, so the smoke would not interfere with the camera. About 30 people came in to buy "punch" from the store only to have the actors give them the laugh. A cigarette butt, thrown in a turning barrel, started the big holocaust. Three hundred children are seen caught in a horrible fire, in a hall above the "store." The ground floor of this scene is simply astounding. Stated as the smoke, which plays the part of an unscrupulous real estate manipulator, young Bobby Kennedy, Virginia Pearson, Naomi Childers and other noted Vitaphone stars, other fine multiple bill program, also shown besides today and tomorrow. Coming, "The Girl From Frisco," a new Kalem serial.

OWL THEATRE
Irene Fenwick, the gifted and charming star, has the distinction of appearing in the stellar roles of three big Broadway successes, in succession, will be seen on the screen here in the Owl theatre today and tomorrow, in "The Child of Destiny," a five part Metro wonder play. This film will mark Miss Fenwick's first appearance in a feature, and the vehicle selected for her is an exceptionally strong one. "The Child of Destiny" tells a story which every mother and daughter should see. It deals with a young girl, the child of the desolate swamp country, who grows up with no companions, save an old bird and a snake. She is loved by a young man, who is carried off to the city by her guardian, to be educated. There she meets and falls in love with a young man, who is unfortunately had been married to an adventuress. The simplicity of the girl does not appeal to him, so he does not return her love. But later when the girl learns to wear fine clothes and becomes refined she suddenly changes his mind and falls violently in love with her. He pleads with the woman to whom he is married to divorce him but she refuses. Then the girl's guardian goes to the arrogant and unfeeling adventuress and tells her of the love of the girl of the swamps. Her own child. How the mother's love in her suddenly becomes awakened and how she brings about the marriage of the two young folk forms one of the most highly dramatic stories ever presented on any screen. Other attractive features will also be presented, the cost Owl theatre today and tomorrow.

CANOBIE LAKE PARK

Canobie Lake park is offering another stupendous bill of vaudeville for the week-end. The first of the most comedy sketches ever seen around here for a feature act. It stars "Billy" Augustine, formerly of the Academy Players of Haverhill and the players at the local theatre. Many people have seen Mr. Augustine during the past winter and they well know his capabilities to please. The sketch is a building and fun and carries a fine plot, something that the ordinary comedy farces do not have. It's a laugh from the first and gives Mr. Augustine unlimited range for to prove his stage ability. Oh, yes, there are four other acts on the bill, but special stress is laid upon "Billy" because he is so well known hereabouts. The other acts are of that sort that would make any metropolitan house manager envious were any theatre in his city playing them. In addition to the vaudeville one of the finest bills of pictures ever arranged for the theatre at the lake adds lots of interest.

LAFAYETTE MONUMENT

MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF UNVEILING CEREMONY IN LOWELL YESTERDAY

Dr. A. St. George and L. J. Rioux, both of Fall River and members of the committee in charge of the unveiling of the Lafayette monument on Labor day, and which was erected by the Franco-Americans of Fall River, came to Lowell yesterday for the purpose of cutting the program of the grand celebration to be held at Fall River and also to urge local organizations to be represented at the ceremonies, which promise to be a notable event in the history of Fall River.

Among the plans outlined by the organization committee, the program will open on Saturday morning, Sept. 2, with the arrival and encampment of the Franco-American brigade at State farm, South Somerset, on the shore of the Taunton river. In connection with this number, several Lowell semi-military organizations will be present. In the evening following the pitching of camp, concerts and fireworks will be enjoyed.

On Sunday, Sept. 3, a solemn military mass will be celebrated in St. Matthew's church, at the same time in honor of the 10th anniversary of the military brigade. Rev. Fr. Messier, pastor, will be the officiating clergyman, and will also welcome the visitors. In the afternoon a review and dress parade will take place, followed by a regatta. The evening program will introduce a concert, in part to French Ambassadors, in connection with the Lafayette club. On Monday, Labor day, the day's program will open with a salute of 21 guns by the warships in the harbor. The parade will start at 10:30 o'clock and will be followed by the unveiling of the monument, which ceremony will take place about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 5 o'clock a banquet will be held in the upper portion of the monument, with Lafayette on horseback, is of bronze and is the work of Zocci, an Italian sculptor. It has been shipped from across the waters and is expected to arrive within two or three weeks.

Several local organizations will be represented at the ceremonies, for the 10th anniversary of the founding of the French-American league will also be observed at the same place.

WILL GO TO RUSSIA

FAREWELL DINNER AT LAKE NABASSETT—GOLD WATCH FOR FRED A. BRANT

A farewell dinner was tendered Mr. Edward K. Standish, Mr. Fred A. Brant and Mr. Herbert H. Hillard at Camp Ideal, Lake Nabassett, Tuesday evening, Aug. 1st, at which about 30 of their friends and associates were present.

Messrs. Standish, Brant and Hillard are members of the organization of the Samuel M. Green company, engineers, Springfield, Mass., which company is in charge of the technical work of the Lowell plant of the International Steel & Ordnance corporation.

Both Mr. Standish and Mr. Brant will leave immediately for Petrograd, Russia, Mr. Hillard following them a little later, to install machinery there in the interest of the Samuel M. Green company.

The next morning Mr. Brant was most agreeably surprised by his roommates at the International Steel & Ordnance plant, who presented him a gold watch as a token of their esteem.

They leave Lowell with the best wishes of their many friends in this city for a safe and enjoyable trip. They expect to be gone about six months.

HER 50TH ANNIVERSARY

SISTER MARY GERTRUDE TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF HER ENTRANCE IN NOTRE DAME

Sister Mary Gertrude (Miss Margaret Coughlin), formerly of this city and now a member of the Notre Dame order, will observe the 50th anniversary of her entrance in the order Wednesday at the home of the order in Cincinnati.

Sister Mary Gertrude is the daughter of the late Jeremiah and Margaret Coughlin. She left this city in 1864 and on Aug. 9, 1868, she made her first vows in Reading, O., where she remained 17 years. Later she was transferred to Southville, Mass., and seven years later to Lynn, and subsequently to Salem, Mass., Odell, Ill., Washington and other places.

Her visits in recent years to points in the east have not been frequent. She came to this city at the time members of the Notre Dame order decided to purchase the estate in Tyngsboro, which has become a summer home for members of the Notre Dame order in this section of New England.

Her niece, Sister Gertrude of Mary, known in the world as Margaret Ring, is a member of the Notre Dame order and is stationed in Columbus, O. She was born in Lowell.

A brother of Sister Mary Gertrude, Daniel Coughlin, is a resident of Barclay street, here. Her niece is Miss Julia Ring of this city.

With whom she has kept up a regular correspondence, and her other relatives, all originally of Lowell, are Jas. A. Ring, of Malone, N. Y.; James Ring of Providence, R. I.; and William J. Ring of this city. Mr. Grace Coughlin, of this city, and John J. Coughlin, of Lowell, all of this city. In her last letter to Sister Julia Ring, Sister Mary Gertrude stated that she was enjoying

EFFORTS TO SETTLE NEW YORK STRIKE FAIL

Directors of New York Railways Co., Decline to Ratify Agreement — Strikers Ready for Work

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The efforts of Mayor Mitchell and of Public Service Commissioner Straus to settle the street railway strike in New York failed today. After a protracted meeting, the directors of the New York Railways Co., declined at this time to ratify the tentative agreement proposed by the two public officials as a basis for a settlement.

A committee of New York Railways company directors, headed by August Belmont, left the meeting to report to Mayor Mitchell. It was said that the directors desired certain amendments to the agreement before giving it their approval. It was believed that the action of the directors would lead to further negotiations with the strike leaders.

SUBMARINE OFF MAINE COAST MAY BE BREMEN

Lookout Reports Two Submarines, One Considerably Smaller Than the Other Off Cross Island Guard Station — No U. S. Submarines in Vicinity

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—That there were two submarines off Cross Island coast guard station this morning, one of them considerably smaller than the other, is the story which Lowell W. Dunn, the lookout who sighted the craft told The Associated Press today.

"I was standing on the hill looking out to sea through my glasses," said Mr. Dunn, "and it was perfectly clear at the time, while the water was smooth. The first of the two submarines appeared from beneath the surface at about 8:30 o'clock and I should judge that her hull was ten or twelve feet out of water. Although she was at a distance of more than five miles off shore I could plainly make out what seemed to be a small tower in the middle of the vessel. I watched her for a few minutes and then shifting my glasses, I saw another smaller submarine a mile ahead of her. Both were bound to the westward. The vessel in the lead soon submerged and three or four minutes after I turned to take another look at the big one, she too, went below the surface. The submarines were travelling at the rate of 10 or 12 miles an hour.

"I am positive," continued Mr. Dunn, "that the vessels were submarines for the towers were plainly visible."

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—A submarine was sighted five miles off the coast by a lookout at the coast guard station on Cross Island at 8:30 o'clock this forenoon. It was moving west but the weather was thick and its nationality could not be made out.

The submarine when first seen was coming to the surface, and it submerged again about 15 minutes later.

Capt. Small of the Cross Island life saving station, who reported the incident to Machiasport, said the lookout declared that the vessel was a large one and that the weather was sufficiently clear to leave no doubt that it was a submarine.

May Be Bremen

It was thought that the vessel might be the German submarine Bremen. So far as can be learned there are no United States submarines off the Maine coast.

Capt. Small said that the submarine was sighted about five miles southeast of Cross Island, which lies close to the Maine coast. If the vessel was the Bremen she was either off her course or, for reasons best known to the master of the merchantman, had chosen to come in close to the enemy's country in order to arrive sooner within the three mile limit.

To be off Cross Island the submarine must have skirted the coast of Nova Scotia and rounded Sable Island, thence heading north along the edge of the Bay of Fundy instead of taking the more direct route across the Gulf of Maine to Bar Harbor or Portland.

The indicated course would bring her within the three mile limit soon after she was sighted, and from then on she would have plenty of water to permit her to keep within the neutral zone.

The lookout who sighted the submarine later said that as the vessel came to the surface the lookout said he heard several blasts from the signal horn at the lighthouse on Seal Island, a British possession.

He believed that the keeper of the lighthouse was signaling to the keeper at Grand Manan light, also English owned, that a submarine had been sighted.

Immediately after the whistle sounded the submarine submerged. A few moments later a haze set in and it was impossible to see more than four miles off Cross Island.

A canvass of naval stations and builders appeared to establish that no American submarines were off this coast. Men who were close to naval affairs expressed the conviction that no submarine of the allies was now in Canadian waters or near the New England coast.

NOT U. S. SUBMARINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Navy officers said today, no American submarines were known to be anywhere in the vicinity of Cross Island. They thought the boat sighted there might be the German merchant submarine Deutschland on her homeward voyage or her sister ship, the Bremen, bound in for the United States.

HILKES INTERESTED

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—Henry G. Hilkes, senior member of the Eastern Forwarding Co., American agents of the German merchant submarines, read the Associated Press despatch reporting the sighting of a submarine off the Maine coast today with interest.

He refused to comment on the possibility of the craft being the Bremen or any other German underwater boat.

STRIKERS SHOT IN RIOT

Attempt to Reopen Mill With Strikebreakers Caused Trouble at Worcester—One Killed

WORCESTER, Aug. 7.—Several strikers at the mills of the Barre Wool Combing Co. and the Norway Worsted Co. were shot this afternoon during a riot that attended an attempt by the mill managers to re-open their plants with strike-breakers. The mills have had trouble with their employees for the past three weeks and a party was brought to town today to take their places. A riot followed and the special officers who are on duty to protect the mill property felt called on to fire their revolvers into the rioters. It is reported that half a dozen people in the mob were shot and four were seriously wounded.

At 2 o'clock the rioters were not under control. The man being brought to Worcester died on the road before he reached Rutland.

ARMY AND NAVY BILL

National Defense Legislation Takes Long Stride Toward Completion at an Early Date

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—National defense legislation took a long stride today toward completion at an early date, when conferees on the army appropriation bill reported a complete agreement and the conference committee on the naval appropriation bill reached an agreement on increased personnel for the navy.

Agreement on the personnel increases by the naval conferees came as a surprise as it had been expected that this disputed section of the bill would have to be returned to the house for further consideration.

Details of the agreement is not announced, but a compromise is said to have been reached between the senate and house totals and on the methods of promotion.

Following agreement on personnel the conferees took up consideration of the naval construction program.

It is regarded as probable that the senate program for construction of four battleships and four battle cruisers in 1917 will be accepted, but that the three-year continuing program will be eliminated.

FURTHER ADVANCE FOR RUSSIANS IN GALICIA

Czar's Troops Capture Sereth and Graberka—Heavy Fighting — Turks Defeated at Suez

General Brussiloff is pressing his offensive against the Teutonic allies in northern Galicia where the passage of the river Sereth was forced recently by the Russians along a wide front south of Brody. Petrograd today reports further advances for the Russians with the capture of strongly fortified positions along the Sereth and the Graberka.

The forward push of the Russians in this sector is not only bringing them closer to Lemberg on the direct line of advance, but it is pointed out by military critics as likely seriously to endanger the entire Austrian front along the Strpa, to the south, which is rapidly being outflanked.

Heavy Fighting at Verdun

Heavy fighting continues on the western front in the Verdun region. According to Paris, however, the Germans have been entirely unsuccessful in their efforts to regain ground lost to the French in Gen. Nivelle's offensive of last week. An attack on the Thiaumont work is declared to have been checked at the outset by the French fire barrier, while an assault in the Vaux-Chapelle woods was broken up by the artillery and machine guns.

In the field of the allied offensive along the Somme today's Paris statement reports only a slight activity, which, however, was intense in the region of Chaumes, north of the river.

Defeat For Turks

British reports of the fighting east of the Suez canal in Egypt show a crushing defeat for the Turks who are said to have lost fully one-fourth of their effectives, which numbered some 14,000 men. The British took more than 3100 prisoners.

They are pursuing the Turks who already have been driven 18 miles into the desert from the scene of the action.

In German East Africa

In German East Africa the British have driven the Germans beyond the central railway line, bisecting the possession, thus pressing them into a comparatively narrow area on the other side of which Portuguese forces from the neighboring colony of Portuguese East Africa are operating. London despatches report Premier Botha of the Union of South Africa on the scene in anticipation that the operation of depriving the Germans of their last remaining colonial possession will soon be completed.

British Front Along Somme

Regarding the operations on the British front in the Somme region, London announces that the lines in the Pozieres sector have been maintained in the face of continued counter attacks. Berlin today reports the recapture of sections of a trench near Pozieres temporarily held by the British. London admitted last night that German counter attacks yesterday had made inroads on the ground won by the British last week, but declared that all but about forty yards of one trench had been subsequently recovered by the British.

German Successes in Carpathians

The German influence upon the campaign in the Carpathians is reflected in the reports of the fighting in that region. Berlin today announces that German troops have won new successes there, capturing additional heights on the Cseremoch river.

Route For Russians

Constantinople reports a rout for the Russians in the Mush sector in Turkish Armenia. Petrograd admits a Russian retirement for a short distance in this region.

GERMAN COUNTER ATTACKS EAST OF POZIERES LAST NIGHT WERE REPULSED

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Several small counter attacks by the Germans east of Pozieres last night were repulsed, the war office announced today.

The announcement said: "Hostile artillery bombardments continue between the Ancre and the Somme, both on the front line and back areas."

"The enemy made several small counter attacks east of Pozieres, all of which were repulsed with loss to the enemy. We retained the ground won yesterday."

"Last night we carried out a successful raid on the enemy's trenches east of Neuville St. Vaast. South-east of Bois Grenier the enemy endeavored to raid our trenches but the raiding party was unable to reach our lines and was driven back with loss."

RAPID PROGRESS FOR ALLIES IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA—BOTH A AT FRONT

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Gen. Louis Botha, premier of the Union of South Africa, has arrived in German East Africa to witness what is believed here to be the last phase of the operations against Germany's one remaining colony. Gen. Botha was present at the recent fighting north of the German central railway which resulted in a British advance to another occupation of the lines at Kilimathinde and other points.

Meanwhile, with the occupation of Ujiji by the Belgians and of Sadani and other coast ports by the British, the Germans apparently are afforded only the opportunity of retreating into the southeastern corner of the colony, where the Portuguese, in their East African possession, are awaiting them.

Rapid progress in the southward drive of the British through German East Africa is reported in an official statement issued today. The statement follows:

"General Smuts states that the minor port of Sadani (on the Indian ocean) was occupied by our naval forces on Aug. 1, slight opposition only being experienced. Other naval operations are in progress at various points along the coast line."

"Having reached the German central railway at Kilimathinde, Dodoma and Kilombero, Lieut. Col. Vandevanter, pursuing the enemy forces, dislodged them from this area in the direction of Mpapua."

"A detachment operating in the direction of Sindiga, west of Kondoa-Irang, engaged with an enemy party which surrendered after stubborn resistance in a blockhouse."

GERMANS RECAPTURE PART OF TRENCH HELD BY BRITISH NEAR POZIERES

BERLIN, Aug. 7, via London.—German troops have recaptured portions of the trench which had been taken by the British near Pozieres on the Somme front it was officially announced today by German army headquarters.

In the Carpathians the German statement adds, German troops have gained the Plank and Desokowata heights on the Cseremoch river.

BERLIN, Aug. 7. (By wireless to Sayville).—The following announcement regarding military operations on the western front was given out here today:

"Near Pozieres a counter-attack regained for us sections of a trench held temporarily by the British."

"Engagements have been going on since yesterday evening between Thiepval and Bazentin-le-Petit. A minor French attack north of Monaca last evening and a very strong attack there this morning were repulsed completely."

"Engagements at Thiaumont ridge, (Verdun front) came to an end without success for the enemy."

"Several attacks by enemy aviators at points behind the front were without great effect. Bombs thrown on Metz caused some damage."

The official account of operations on the eastern front follows:

"Front of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. In the northern section there were no events of importance. Hostile detachments which advanced against the sand hill south of Zareze on the Stokhod, which was cleared by us the day before yesterday were repulsed by a counter advance."

"Russian attacks northwest and west of Zareze were without results. Fighting on the right bank of the Sereth is going on."

"German aerial squadrons dropped numerous bombs with evident success on troops concentrated along and north of the Kovel-Sarny railroad."

"Front of Archduke Charles. Francis. The situation with Gen. von Botha's army is unchanged. In the Carpathians our troops captured the heights of Plank and Desokowata on the Cseremoch river."

EPIDEMIC OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS CONTINUES UNABATED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Today marked the beginning of the sixth week of the epidemic of infantile paralysis and the daily bulletin, issued by the health department this morning, showed that the plague continues unabated. During the 24 hours preceding 10 o'clock this morning, 44 children died of the disease in the five boroughs of New York City and 145 new cases were reported. Since the inception of the epidemic there have been 5165 cases, of which number 1143 proved fatal.

The health authorities announced that their appeal for volunteers among persons formerly suffering with the disease and on whom the health department is conducting an experiment in the hope of developing a new serum had been in vain. Consideration is being given to a suggestion that horses be inoculated with germs so that blood may be obtained for this serum. Also, it was stated, efforts will be made to induce former patients in localities outside of this city to offer their blood for the desired purpose.

SUFFRAGIST LEADER WINS

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 7.—It became certain today that Dr. Eva Harding of Topeka, a suffragist leader, had won the democratic nomination for member of congress in the first district over the Rev. H. J. Corwin, in the recent state-wide primary.

FUNERALS

NEWTON.—The funeral of Joseph Newton took place this morning at 9:30 o'clock from the home of his parents, James and Julia, 127 Salem street and was largely attended. A funeral high mass was celebrated at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Joseph Curtin. The burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. Joseph Curtin read the burial services. The bearers were Masters Harold Padden, John O'Brien, Thomas Lenthin, John Manning, James Newton and William Fitzgerald. Among the tributes placed on his grave were: Large spray from the family and pieces from his playmates, Mr. O'Connell and family, Miss Alice Judge, Miss Maria Murray, Patrick Scanlon and family, Mrs. Dacey, Mrs. Southworth, Mrs. Hession and family. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy.

LAUNDRY

LAUNDRY.—Catherine Lampanis, child of George and Anna, died Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, 417 Adams street, aged seven months. The funeral took place at 10 o'clock. The burial was in Washington cemetery. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy.

"THE CONFIDENCE MAN"

The confidence man wins kind-hearted people by falsehoods and plausible stories. The phrase originated thus: In New York a man was almost every man he met. "Have you confidence enough in me, a stranger, to lend me five dollars?" In this way he obtained much money and was known as the "confidence man."

We have also gained the confidence of the people, but by an entirely different method. By absolute truth and sincerity toward the people we have obtained their confidence and shall do everything to retain it.

CAPTURED 100 GERMANS

CORP. GOUTAUBIER DECORATED WITH MILITARY CROSS BY PRES. POINCARÉ

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Corporal Goutaubier of the French light infantry has been decorated with a Military Cross by President Poincaré for capturing 100 Germans, including two officers, aided only by a single companion.

When Corporal Goutaubier was paraded before President Poincaré, on the recent visit of the latter to the Somme front, he told the story of his feat.

It was on July 20, before Hemwood. The French troops had just dashed forward at the German positions. The first wave had swept over the enemy's trenches and the second had followed to complete the operation. However, from a hollow toward the right, a well sustained fusillade was being poured on the flank of the attackers.

Goutaubier, who was at the right wing of the second wave, called out to one man: "Guillot come with me."

The two men approached the spot whence the firing came. They glided from tree to tree until they were close to the shelter where a German company was holding out. Guillot threw bombs as fast as he could into their midst and the fire ceased.

"Surrender," shouted the corporal from behind a tree.

In response to his demand, 100 Germans emerged from the shelter with uplifted hands, led by two officers.

"Pass along this way," shouted Goutaubier from his hiding place.

Two minutes later the 100 Germans, shepherded by the corporal and Guillot, arrived at the French lines.

The prisoners admitted that some of their comrades remained in the shelter.

"Come on, Guillot, let us round up the rest," said Goutaubier.

The two men started back but Guillot fell with a bullet in his breast and the corporal had to abandon his enterprise.

NEW YORK STRIKERS

that the demands of the strikers for a wage scale of 30 to 33 cents an hour were granted, together with virtual but not official recognition of their union and an agreement to the men's demands that future differences between them and the company should be submitted to arbitration by a committee representative of the strikers.

The main contention of the conductors and motemen has been for the right to organize without intimidation. Should a settlement of the strike affecting the New York City Subway Co. be brought about, it is generally believed that a similar agreement would be made with the strikers on the surface lines in Queens county. This agreement may also have an influence toward settling the strike on the Second and Third Avenue surface lines and the independent lines on Staten Island. Managers of the different surface car systems promised to provide an adequate service today after a virtual suspension last night.

After a virtual suspension last night, official police figures issued early in the day showed that 339 cars were in operation.

There was no suspension of precautionary measures against possible trouble, however, as one or two policemen rode on every car.

The strikers kept off the streets in the early hours and no disorders were reported.

Carmen Ratify Agreement

President Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees announced at the close of the employees' meeting that the tentative agreement had been ratified and that the men were ready to go back to work.

It was ratified by the directors of the New York City Subway Co. The latter at that time were still in session.

$1 A DAY EXTRA FOR 12,000

New York Subway and Elevated Employees Granted Increase for Extra Work

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—After a conference between Theodore P. Shonts and Frank Hedley, president and general manager respectively of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, it was announced that all employees of the Interborough, numbering approximately 12,000, will receive $1 per day extra pay until further notice, beginning yesterday.

Traffic in the subway and on the elevated railway lines, which are controlled by the Interborough, has been so increased by the disturbed conditions on the surface roads as to put extra burdens on the Interborough employees, the announcement said, and for that reason the company decided the men were entitled to additional compensation.

Mr. Hedley, who also is general manager of the new York City Subway company, declared that "the return of a large number of former employees" had made it possible for the surface lines controlled by his company to provide 60 per cent of its normal service yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA CARMEN STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—The strike of members of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees, was called by Harry E. Flynn, president of the local division at 3:30 this morning, but apparently there was no change in the running schedule of the lines of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., which operate the street railways.

Flynn issued a statement saying 1800 of the 4700 employees of the company had responded to the strike order and that several lines were tied up and others crippled. Strike breakers had replaced the men out, he said. Company officials asserted that only a negligible number of men had quit and that all lines were being operated as usual. As a matter of precaution police were stationed at all car barns and powerhouses.

The union's leader asserted that additional men would be induced to join the strikers late in the day.

Under the co-operative plan by which 22 per cent of the receipts of the company is set aside for the wage account, employees who have been in the service five years or more are now receiving 31 cents an hour. The question of union recognition is left to a referendum vote of all the employees.

ALLIES WILL WIN

Joffre Says Victory Sure on Every Front—Praises Americans

HEADQUARTERS OF THE GENERAL STAFF IN FRANCE, Aug. 7.—Gen. Joseph Joffre, generalissimo of the French army and the guiding spirit of the united army of the entente allies, received the Associated Press correspondent here and for upwards of an hour talked freely and fully on many interesting phases of the war.

He expressed the view that the turning point of the great conflict had now been reached and passed, and that with the united action of the entente allies on the many fronts, they were pressing forward to the certain collapse of the German efforts and to an assured victory of the allied armies.

Gen. Joffre was in his private office at headquarters when the party of American correspondents arrived. The general had been arranged for the anniversary of the opening of the war.

"I want to express my satisfaction in meeting you, gentlemen, and through you to express our feelings toward the American people," he said, speaking in an easy, conversational tone.

A feeling of deep friendship has always existed between France and America, and it is particularly opportune now, after France has been fighting for two years for the ideals dear to both countries, that this old friendship should be renewed and strengthened.

Complete Unity of Allies

"Although the fighting is getting more and more bitter, everyone recognizes that the complete unity of the allies that destiny has shaped its course until everyone can clearly see that the final outcome is going to be. This unity on all fronts is a great characteristic of the campaign now going on, and the effect is now apparent of the constant pressure on all sides by the allies, who now have but time to form their plans, thanks to the sacrifices which the French nation has made at Verdun."

"We must also pay full homage to the splendid part our allies are taking in the increasing efforts along the Somme and on all other fronts. The Russian effort has now succeeded in organizing and putting forward larger and larger forces of men, drawn from their apparently inexhaustible resources of human material and at the same time fully arming these masses. The splendid results of their efforts are shown in what they have accomplished in Galicia and along the entire eastern front."

Sees German Weakness

Gen. Joffre now turned his attention to the German side of the campaign, taking up the evidence of weakness, which has been shown in the withdrawal of their forces from the number of reserves they are able to move to various fronts.

"If on the other side we consider the condition of our enemy," Gen. Joffre continued, "we know for certain that although they are fighting as desperately as ever, they are drawing on their last resources. Their game has been, up to now, to transfer their reserves from one point to another, but with the united action of the allies on all fronts our enemy finds such a course impossible now and will find it increasingly so in the future. It is not for him to say how long the struggle is going to last, but that really matters little. They know the crash is coming and you feel as we do, that we have already reached, passed the turning point. The five months' resistance of our troops at Verdun has shattered the hopes of the Germans and has turned the scale. But still do not imagine that there is a complete weakening of the Germans on the western front."

HER 18th BIRTHDAY

Miss Edith Murphy of 27 England street, was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening by a number of her young friends, who called to assist her in celebrating her 18th birthday. A buffet lunch was served by Mrs. L. Lacombe and Mrs. William Murphy. Miss Murphy was presented a diamond ring and though taken absolutely by surprise, responded in a fitting manner.

Irving Hunter, aged 37 years, at Gloucester.

Elmer E. Wing at West Somerville. Gilliam Antaya, at Leominster.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 7.—Louis E. Browne, aged 47, a manufacturer living at 22 Walter street, Roslindale, Mass., became exhausted while bathing in the ocean creek yesterday afternoon and was drowned.

With Mr. Browne at the time was John S. McGowan, Jr., of 11 Stone street, Somerville, Mass. Browne, who was a good swimmer, had struck out some distance from his companion and into deep water. There was a strong easterly running, and when he attempted to return his strength failed him.

He shouted to one of the bathers that he was "all in," but before any one could come to his assistance he had gone down. He was taken ashore and a pump was used in an effort to restore him to life.

For two hours members of the Biddeford Pool life-saving station and doctors worked over him to no avail.

Mr. Browne was stopping over the week-end at the Fensenden cottage, which Mrs. Browne and Mrs. Walter, also of 22 Walter street, Roslindale, had rented for the summer. Browne had motored down Friday.

Louis E. Browne of 22 Walter street, Roslindale, was superintendent of the Farrington Manufacturing company, jewelry and eyeglass cases, with a large factory at 23 Vale street, Roxbury. He was born in Lynn, where he worked for some time as die maker and machinist with the General Electric company. In 1905 he moved to 133 Thornton street, Roxbury, to take a position with the Farrington company. He had no children.

When Harry J. Farrington of the Farrington Manufacturing company, was seen last night, he said, "I received a telegram today telling me of the death of Mr. Browne. It was a shock to me. He was a fine fellow—the most valuable man we had."

John S. McGowan of 11 Stone street, Somerville, said last night that he had received a telegram from his son saying that Mr. Browne was drowned, but that he was safe.

LIVERMORE LOSES LIFE

Dorchester Man Is Drowned While Bathing in Surf at North Scituate Beach

SCITUATE, Aug. 7.—Benjamin Livermore, 22 years old, of 5 Magnolia street, Dorchester, was drowned in the surf in front of the Cliff House at North Scituate beach yesterday afternoon. Three doctors and two nurses, assisted by Capt. Frederick Franzen and the crew of the United States Coast Guard station, worked over the body for nearly three hours with a pump.

Livermore, who was employed in the Boston branch of the Edison Electric company, was a nephew of Miss Elizabeth Golden, who lives in Scituate, and Livermore was at the beach for the day only.

Immediately after dinner he donned a bathing suit and entered the surf. A few minutes later his body was noticed floating on the waves and was brought ashore. It was the opinion of the physicians that Livermore had probably suffered from cramp or shock brought on by entering the water too quickly after eating.

SINKS IN SIGHT OF WIFE

Odillon Antaya Is Drowned While Bathing in Port Pond at Leominster

LEOMINSTER, Aug. 7.—Odillon Antaya, 32 years old, employed by the F. A. Whitney Carriage company, and living at 157 Mechanic street, was drowned yesterday in sight of his wife and daughter while he was bathing in Port Pond. The body was recovered.

KNOCKED OVER BY BOOM

Roland Robbins Drowns Following Jiffing of Sailing Craft Off Northport, Me.

NORTHPORT, Me., Aug. 7.—In sight of many of the people of this resort who were on or near the steamboat wharf about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Roland Robbins, 26, of Belfast, was knocked overboard by the boom of the small sloop Spray and drowned.

Robbins was standing near the mast and gave the order to jibe the boom. A collision with a motor boat, The Boomer, occurred, and he was knocked overboard, sinking in 30 feet of water within a short distance of the wharf. Grappling for his life he was helpless but it came to the surface in view of the people on the wharf when the Boston boat left the pier on her out trip at 3 o'clock last night.

EASTERN LEAGUE COMMENT

Lowell at Lawrence tomorrow.

The Planters made a fine "come back" Saturday.

Paddy Green seemed to lose courage with New London three runs in the lead.

Lowell is now two full games away from the cellar.

Kane's begging while catching in the second game was O. K. The speedsters didn't steal a base.

Al Odell is the only veteran on the New London team. The rest are all youngsters coming along.

Helfrich led at bat for Lowell with two hits in each game. Greenhalge, Torphy and Green each got two in the first game.

Portland lost an exhibition game to the Stamford semi-professionals yesterday. Martin and Durning did the pitching for the Duffs but were found for 10 hits.

Robinson had six chances in right field in the first game but didn't have a thing to do in the second.

Portland and New London promise a great fight for first place.

The Lawrence Tribune says that the downriver team is out to get into the first division. Wonder if Lou Pieperis worried?

Umpire Jim Keady pulled a new one in Lawrence last week. With two men on bases Pitcher Dennington started to pass Denoville, a fairly good hitter, when two balls had been thrown Keady sent Denoville to first to hurry the game along.

John J. O'Hara, the new manager of the Lawrence team, has appointed Shortstop Larry Mahoney field captain of the team to succeed Bill Luyster, who jumped to Maine.

Marty Nye, who couldn't hit with the Hartford team, is leading the Lawrence batters with an average of .239. Larry Mahoney is but one point behind.

K. OF C. MEN LEAVE NIAGARA

New England Delegates Tendered Many Dinners at Chicago and Cleveland—Some Due Wednesday.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont delegates who attended the Knights of Columbus convention at Davenport, Iowa, last week, spent yesterday at Niagara Falls and left yesterday. Some will return home by Wednesday, others later. The New Englanders held together for one of the pleasantest trips ever made and despite the warm weather had an excellent time. Features of which the party will long have pleasant recollection were the dinners tendered the easterners.

At Chicago Mr. Cannon of the Catholic Foresters of America entertained some 40 visitors with an automobile ride through the nearly 50 miles of park system, and ended with dinner at the Bismark garden. On the same evening President Charles Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox gave the party had him and Art Lavigne in third with an average of .244.

Portland has defeated Hartford in nine straight games and Hartford has been unable to win once from the league leaders. The Senators have five more chances.

Lowell has a hard week ahead with Lawrence and Worcester as opponents. Both teams are going fine. The team will be at home three days and away three. The next home game is Wednesday and Thursday Lowell was crowned with Billy Hamilton's Worcester team.

Thanks to the pitching of Zeke Lohman Lowell won two games last week. Monday Bridgeport beat us in a close game but we evened it up Tuesday by a 1 to 0 victory. Bridgeport made it two out of three with an easy win Wednesday and Thursday Lowell was crowned with Billy Hamilton's Worcester team.

More life was evident at the games last week than the week previous. With Lohman on the mound the players seem to possess the necessary confidence and put up a good game but they do not have much faith in the other pitchers after the opposing bats begin to swing against the horseshoe.

Better pitching is needed to win games. Every other team in the league has at least three pitchers who are rated in Class A and can be depended upon to hold the opposing team down under ordinary circumstances but this is not true about Lowell. With three good pitchers Lowell would soon get out of ninth place.

No better looking ball club has shown on the local grounds since the team representing the Senators in 1912, which won the championship, than the present Portland league leaders. Duffy has brought together a hard hitting aggregation of ball players and they also shine strongly as fielders, the work of Tamm in particular at short yesterday, being the kind that men in and tosses them across the diamond all with one motion.—Hartford Courant.

a dinner, and on Saturday night Maurice F. Drummer of Boston gave the party a dinner at the Colonial, Cleveland, O. The party came across Lake Erie Saturday night and attended church in Buffalo yesterday morning.

At Davenport, Ia., during the convention William F. Shanahan of Somerville was approached by a resident of that city who greeted him as Martin Lonsdale, and insisted that he had met at the St. Louis democratic convention, and it was hard work to convince the Iowa of the error. Past State Deputy Edward Maley of Newport, N. H., was mistaken for President Wilson, whom he resembled.

Among those who are returning home are Judge J. E. Moran of New Bedford, Deputy Sheriff Colgan of Augusta, Tom Dowd of Nashua, Vt., Fredrick Grace of Fair Haven, Vt., and others.

TOM HUGHES LEADING ALL
THE NATIONAL LEAGUE TWIRLERS

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Tom Hughes of the Braves ranks as the leading pitcher of the National league just now with a record of nine victories and two defeats. This gives him a percentage of .818. Ruben Markham of Brooklyn is second on the list, although he has won only four games and lost one. Alexander of the Phillies is the real leader with a record of nineteen victories and six defeats. Nine of his victories have been shutouts. His percentage is .760. Marmox of the Pirates ranks next to Alex with fifteen wins and five defeats as his record. Al is tied with Pfeffer of the Dodgers, who has a similar record.

NEW LONDON WON BOTH

LOWELL DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE WITH PLANTERS IN DOUBLE BILL SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The New London Planters came back hard at Lowell at Spaulding park Saturday afternoon and made Manager Kihlhuber's nine bow to them in both games of a double header. The first game was one sided and was won by the score of 11 to 3, while the second, a seven inning affair, was taken by a 4 to 1 score.

Paddy Green started off like a major leaguer in the first game and struck out three men in succession in the second inning but after three runs had been scored on one hit and wild heaves by Shorty Dee, Green was not so effective.

Bunny Hearn, the big southpaw selected by Manager McCann for the first game, held Lowell hitless for five innings. Helfrich broke the ice with a single to right in the sixth and three hits in the seventh gave Lowell its first run. Two more runs were pushed across in the eighth but they did not count for New London got to Green hard in the ninth and added five runs to the score.

Though New London hit hard in the first game, the team's work in the field featured. Flashy plays by the infield rubbed the Lowell players of what looked like sure hits. Rodriguez on first base made several star plays while Odell, Dowd and Marhefka were also present with sensational stops.

SECOND GAME

Freddie Rieger's effective pitching and timely hitting won the second game for New London. Lowell started off with two hits in the first inning and was robbed of a couple more by the fine fielding of Odell on third but after that session Rieger tightened and allowed but four more hits during the game. Freddie was also "there" at the bat scoring one run after making a pretty single and knocking in two more with a long triple to center.

Bonsack pitched a good game for Lowell. Rieger's triple came in the third with two out or the score would have been close. But six hits were secured from Bonsack. The score:

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Good work, Red Sox.

Now for the White Sox.

It wouldn't be using Matty very kindly to take two more games, but the Braves need them.

When the barrels for durability are passed around, old Frank Schulte of the Pirates shouldn't be overlooked. Chicago Young Schulte from Syracuse in 1904 and he has been wearing the Cub library ever since.

The Williams college athletic council announces that Ira Thomas, the veteran catcher of the Athletics, has been secured to coach the Purple nine.

After being a sensation in the spring, Cliff Markle of the Yankees has become a sad disappointment in straight early in the year he has not pitched a good game.

Neale, the Red outfielder, has a nickname that he would sell cheap. For some unknown reason he had "Greasy" wished on him by the fans, and he doesn't appreciate it a bit.

RAY KEATING RELEASED

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Pitcher Ray Keating, who has been with the New York Americans since 1912, was released to the Richmond club of the International league.

SOUTH ENDS WON

In one of the fastest games played on the South common for some time, Pitts South Ends defeated the Broadway Social club Saturday afternoon by the score of 3 to 1. It was the second game of the championship series between these teams, the first being won by the South End boys. The game was a pitchers' battle between Devlin and Pauloff, the latter a former South End twirler. Devlin had the better of the duel and also received almost perfect support, while the Broadways piled up six errors. The score:

Batteries: Pitts South Ends, Devlin and Freeman; Broadway, Pauloff and Crowe.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Aug. 7.—Maurice E. McLoughlin and William Johnston are expected and other tennis stars are on hand today for the second round of the singles in the 27th western lawn tennis championship tournament here. Part of the first round, started Saturday, also will be completed today.

McLoughlin's first opponent carded for today is Clarence Cole. Johnston's opponent is J. J. Lewis.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The All Stars will meet on the Chambers street playgrounds Tuesday evening for practice. The All Stars will play in Tewksbury Saturday.

The Tyngsboro A. A. easily defeated a team from the Cartridge shop league at Tyngsboro Saturday by a score of 12 to 0. The features were the pitching of Curtin and the hitting of the town team. McLean, Harlow and Nolan played fast. The score:
T. A. A. 1 2 2 1 0 0 3 2 x-12 17 1
C. S. 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-0 8 2

EVERS TO TAKE LAY OFF

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Captain Johnny Evers of the Braves will not be able to return to handle his job on the diamond today, nor, perhaps, for some time to come. While Johnny had planned to do this, an attack of what is diagnosed as a severe attack of neuritis, centred in the right side of his neck and down the entire length of his right arm, has crippled him.

The ailment is by no means of recent origin. Earlier in the season, as will be remembered, he was forced to take an extended layoff, the trouble at that time centring in his throwing arm near the elbow. It prevented him from throwing except with great pain. In the course of time the trouble vanished and he was able to hurl the ball around with all his former speed and freedom.

Then, coincident with the severe attack of nervous trouble that was mainly responsible for his recent actions on the field, there was a return of the ailment. He complained of a stiff neck and a lame back last Friday. This prevented him from getting into the game the last two days of the week and from that time until yesterday the attack has grown worse.

Yesterday it troubled him so much that the services of a doctor were required to afford him some relief. Frequent cold applications were ordered. In spite of the fact that he can hardly raise his arm, Johnny, with his characteristic grit and determination, has announced that he will play today if he is wanted. But this, in his present condition, is out of the question.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 7.—The Grand Circuit race meeting, the dates for which were transferred here from Grand Rapids, Mich., opened at Brainerd's Island this afternoon. The feature for the first day was the $3000 stake for 207 pacers which was raced on the three heat system.

GEORGE F. CONSIDINE DEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—George F. Considerine, once manager of famous boxers, including Jim Corbett and Kid McCoy, is dead at his home here, it was learned today.

TO DISCUSS UMPIRES

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW OR WEDNESDAY

A National league meeting, called especially to let President Haughton elucidate some of his ideas on the question of umpiring and so forth, is on the cards for tomorrow or Wednesday. Quietly assembled, the high moguls of the "pencil circuit" are to have a chance to tell their own life stories. It will be an "experience" meeting on the umpire subject, and it is expected that it will clear the atmosphere and perhaps provide new ways and means for making permanent the "new leaf" system adopted by the peace-loving local abolitionists under Chief Stallings.

Haughton, as we understand it from various and devious sources, is not to go into this meeting with anything resembling a "blank" demand for this, that or the other thing. He believes, rather, that if the problem really exists and his brother magnates agree with him that it does, it must be treated with considerable care, and absolutely on the basis that co-operation on the part of all concerned must be the keynote of whatever campaign is to be waged. Whether or not the deliberations of the august body of magnates are made at all public, it is deemed certain that there will be a general get-together. In short, it is to be decidedly a peace meeting, with Boston, in a sense, bearing an olive branch.

JOE CHRISTO'S COMEBACK

The best clam bake ever, and a fine program of sports were the attractions at Nahasset grove, yesterday, and the occasion served Joe Christo an opportunity to show that he was right there with the comeback. There were those who were foolish enough to think Joe had gone by the boards as a punner, but his performance yesterday brings him back in the list of top-notchers.

AFTER THE DEUTSCHLAND

Allied Warships Reappear Off Virginia Capes—Pilot Thinks U-Boat Nearly Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Interest among naval and marine experts here suddenly revived yesterday in the German sub-sea fighters, Deutschland and Bremen, with the reports early yesterday morning that allied warships had reappeared off the Capes. The warships which have been watching for the two submarines are reported to believe the Deutschland has not left the three-mile limit, and they are still waiting for its departure.

Naval officers agree in the opinion that the Deutschland is still in United States waters. They are inclined to disregard the story that the sub-sea microphones attached to the keels of the allied vessels have been depended on to detect the outward passage of the submarine, but they are almost unanimous in the belief that as a tactical proposition the under-water freighter is either lying on the bottom somewhere off the coast or cruising up and down within the three-mile limit.

As far as the arrival of the Bremen goes, officers here are openly expecting that she will come in some time during the next 10 days. Their belief is not founded on any official "tip," but a deduction they have reached from a consideration of the whole situation. Little more than a week ago some officers thought the Bremen had been captured by the allied warships. From information since the departure of the Deutschland they have concluded that the Bremen had not left her German port at that time.

The reappearance of the warships off the Capes is taken here as an indication that they are expecting the Bremen. Officers also point out that the German interests would never have given out the tip that the Bremen had left her port if it were true. What they do believe is that the second submarine was loading its cargo and making test plunges in its home port during most of the time the Deutschland was in Baltimore and that the latter purposely delayed her return voyage to cut down the long wait in this country for her sister ship.

As for the Deutschland herself, it is thought the allied vessels missed her completely. She gave the press-boat the slip and it is doubtful if any one has an accurate idea of where she is at present. No further work is expected of her until she docks at the mouth of the Kiel.

PILOT SURE SHE'S SAFE

Saw Deutschland Hiding It Up for Her Home Port and Thinks She is Nearly There

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—Capt. Owen Coleman, the pilot who took the submarine Deutschland from port here to the Capes and saw her off on her return trip to the other side, returned to Baltimore this evening, to ridicule the story that comes from Norfolk which suggests that the unrescued boat is still resting on the bottom of the sea at the Capes.

"You may rest assured," said Capt.

Coleman, "that the Deutschland is hiding it up for her home port—and that she's nearly there. All that stuff about her still being near the Virginia Capes, waiting for a favorable opportunity to leave, is bunk. When I left her on the night of Aug. 2 she was heading straight to sea—and she was invisible, for I do not believe she submerged."

"She merely disappeared in the distance, resembling, because of her dirty green and white streaked hull, a perfectly ordinary ocean wave. It is possible and probable that she submerged after we had lost sight of her. If I judged her master correctly, she very likely ducked right under the nose of an enemy ship. Capt. Koenig's a great one for this irony stuff."

"We watched her for several hours. That is, we watched for her, through the glasses, but she just seemed suddenly to evaporate. I think it was an illusion. That paint works wonders. We could see the horizon and could scan the wrinkled face of the sea, but we saw only waves."

Capt. Coleman, though aboard the Deutschland when she left port, did not go down with her when she made the test off Smiths Point in 139 feet of water.

"I was under orders to remain on board only while she was floating," he explained. "I would have liked to go down and I never would have forgotten the experience. But orders were orders. She made only the one dive in the Chesapeake; I went on board the tug 'Trimming'."

Regarding the crew of the submarine, Capt. Coleman said that he had never seen men so happy at being homebound.

"There was not the slightest sign of fear among them," he said. "They were plainly exuberant. They spoke with the greatest praise of the treatment they received in Baltimore and asserted that they carried back with them the most pleasant memories of their stay here. But they were glad of one thing—to get away from the heat, and also to get on the final lap of the trip which will make them famous."

STABBED FOR BEING GERMAN

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 7.—When John Zarinka was in front of his house on Water street, corner of Smith's court, at an early hour yesterday morning, he was accosted by a man, who is alleged to have demanded, "Are you a German?" Zarinka replied that he was a German Poleander, whereupon the stranger, who said he was a Russian Pole, is alleged to have drawn a knife. In the melee that followed Zarinka was stabbed several times, one of his arms being badly injured. The assailant disappeared.

The injured man was taken to the Anna Jaques hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Zarinka was greatly weakened by loss of blood.

LADY LOOKABOUT

One of the worst features of summer furs is this: even though you have mentally registered your disapproval of the fashion, and even though the very thought of wearing them makes a cool day seem hot, you cannot escape the discomfort produced by seeing them on others. At times you must admit that there is a certain piquant charm about sheer organdies combined with soft white fur, but again you are assailed by the discomfort of observing it on the wearers that is almost as bad as wearing it yourself. At the best it is a silly, silly fad, but if you are going to suffer for anyway, you may as well suffer in a set of your own and really they are becoming. This may be a woman's logic, but you must admit that it is pretty good.

Making Both Ends Meet

These are times which test a woman's housewifely ingenuity and practicality to the utmost. With the cost of food constantly going higher together with the prices on drugs and many other things, it means either that there must be more money coming in or that the income must be made to go further than ever before. Unfortunately, no general increase in salaries has come along with the advance in the cost of living and when the housewife is compelled to economize, the entire family suffers, and discontent starts among the wage earners. If the employers of organized labor turned their energies toward keeping down the cost of the necessities of life, they would reduce to a minimum this discontent and consequent inclination to strike.

The Sheep and the Goats

Here is a suggestion to the founders and fathers of the local class in citizenship. If an alien, ignorant of the laws and customs of this country, can be so well instructed in them by a weekly talk during a part of one winter that he can assume the duties of citizenship and execute them with satisfaction, why would it not be to the mutual advantage of all concerned, to take a class of American women, the wives, sisters, daughters and mothers of voters, and impart to them some of this precious instruction that they, too, may become voting citizens? Too long have the sheep been separated from the goats, and now the sheep (or goats) like the proverbial worms are turning.

How long, O Cataline!

Boys and Their Pranks

"Boys will be boys," I suppose until the end of time, and I assume, that until that day arrives boys will derive the quintessence of joy from being a cat's tail. The fate of the poor rat in Pawtucketville last week, which met with a most tragic end by being shot by the agent of the Humane society after she had taken refuge in a tall tree for two days with a cat tied to her tail, should strike the average boy as pretty poor fun. I like to think that there is a good side to every boy's character, one susceptible to appeal to his higher nature, but often it takes a far stretch of the imagination to assume it in some boys. The trouble is they do not permit themselves to look far enough ahead to reckon on the possibilities of their actions, and often they cause pain and suffering by their thoughtlessness, when such were far from their intentions. A charitable view should be taken of these pranks of boys by their elders and incidentally the opportunity to awaken a little conscience should not be wasted.

Nobody Loves Freckled Women

It is all very well to console your freckled friends with that ancient whopper, "The only the fairest skin that freckles," but when these abominable spots come on your own nose or your own neck, or your own hands and arms, then all consolation vanishes, and the owner of the "fairest skin" would gladly exchange it for the less fair, but far more beautiful cuticle of her freckleless sister. It is a true case of "what's different." Men are not troubled with this affliction, hence the lack of sympathy, but while women know, their sympathy takes the form of inward thanksgiving, if they be of the less fair skin, that they have been spared, while their lips form those cold, cruel words, "This only the fairest skin that freckles."

As She Sees It

The judge in New York City who sentenced the strikers who beat up a strike breaker to support the man's family until he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to return to work, acted in the cause of humanity, and the sentence he imposed promises to open new lines of punishment in judicial circles. If the persons responsible for the incapacitating of a man with a dependent family can be made to provide for that family during the period of incapacity, why may not the same ruling apply to saloon-keepers and the have they cause in here? Too many families have been bereft of the bread-winner through the agency of strong drink sold over the bar by men who take advantage of the weakened wills and broken-down manhood of their customers. If instead of imposing a fine on a poor bankrupt drunkard, a judge should call before him the man who had sold the cause of the unfortunate's condition and sentence him to support the abused wife and neglected children until such time as the husband and father could again take up his family burden, intemperance would be wiped out in a very short time. The national conscience has sunk into a deep sleep, and awaits its awakening through an agency not yet uncovered.

THEIR CRYSTAL WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashton were surprised at their home, 110 Andrews street, Saturday night, the occasion being the 15th anniversary of their wedding. A number of relatives and friends called during the evening to offer congratulations, and the happy couple was the recipient of many gifts.

Mr. Ashton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ashton of Otis street and was born in England, but came here in October, 1914. He was employed a short time at the L. S. Co., but finally settled as a clerk at the A. O. Pollard store. On Aug. 4, 1901, he married Adrienne Linda, the daughter of Robert Mountain of Baccup, Haxtenstahl and Haslingden, England. Mr. and Mrs. Ashton are members of the Gorham St. P.M. church.

HANGS HIMSELF IN HOST'S BARN

METHUEN, Aug. 6.—Joseph Mechorie, 39 years old, whose residence is unknown, hanged himself by a rope in the barn of John Palisz, 69 Riverdale street, here yesterday.

No reason was given for the act. Mechorie was a friend of Palisz, and came to visit him for the day. Shortly after dinner he disappeared and was later found in the barn swinging from a beam.

TOWN OF TROYES

Capital of Champagne is Situated on an Alluvial Plain

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Troves, which has been the concentration camp of the Russian troops brought to France to aid in the allied drive against the Germans, is the subject of a recent war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"Before the outbreak of the European war the town of Troves, situated 100 miles southeast of Paris, and 175 miles west of the Atlantic frontier, was known to American importers as one of the centers of the silk, cotton and woolen hosiery industry of France.

"As the chief town of the department of the Aube, this ancient capital of Champagne, with a population of about 33,000, is charmingly situated on an alluvial plain, with the Seine flowing to the east, and its narrow, crooked streets intersected here and there by canals.

"The history of Troves includes many stirring and dramatic episodes. When the Romans came they gave the name of Augustobona to this capital of the Celts. One of the heroic figures of its early Christian days was St. Loup, or Lupus, the intrepid bishop who succeeded in persuading the supposedly ruthless Hun, Attila, to spare the town. But there was no diplomatic churchman to stay the hand of conquering Normans during the closing years of the ninth century; they sacked the town, leaving it a heap of ruins. Shortly after this calamity the power of the bishops and of the monks in the famous abbey of Notre-Dame-aux-Nonnains began to wane and authority was transferred to the counts of Troves, afterward known as the counts of Champagne.

"For a short time during the 100 years war the city was the seat of the royal government of France during the period when the country was being devastated by foes at home as well as by those abroad, while the mad king, Charles VI, raved neglected, at Senlis. It was at this epoch that of France's national pride that the treaty of Troves was signed in 1420, whereby Henry V. of England, was made regent of the kingdom, and the dauphin, afterward to become Charles VII, was declared illegitimate. To make the bargain more secure the new ruler took as his bride, Catherine, the dauphin's sister, and the marriage was solemnized in the church of St. Jean, one of the 14th century edifices which Troves still treasures as a show place.

"Nine years after this treaty and marriage Troves was reclaimed for France of John of Arc while she was marching toward Rheims, at the head of 15,000 troops, to attend the coronation of the unworthy dauphin.

"Following this momentous period Troves entered upon an era of great prosperity, and by the middle of the seventeenth century had a population about equal to its present size. During that time Protestantism had enjoyed considerable recognition in the city, so that the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685 struck a staggering blow to the community's industrial life, the population falling in a short time to 12,000.

"Troves boasts a large gallery of distinguished citizens and of these none did more for his birthplace than the humble son of a shoemaker who became Urban IV, the pope from whose three-years incumbency dated the preponderance of French influence in the councils of the church, leading eventually to the removal of the papal court from Rome to Avignon, and indirectly bringing about the great schism. Urban gave to Troves a gem of Gothic architecture, the church of St. Urbain, one of the most beautiful ecclesiastical structures of the 13th century. Here also was born Chretien de Troves, the great French poet and founder of the medieval courtly romance, and an adapter of Arthurian legends to the uses of French literature of his day. It was from a work of Chretien's that Wolfram von Eschenbach received inspiration for the great epic which was the basis of Wagner's 'Parsifal' libretto.

The two Mirandus and Francis Girard are among Troves' great artists, while Girardin and Simart are her distinguished sculptors.

"It is to this city that we owe the measure 'troy ounce' and 'troy pound'; this standard having been adopted by Great Britain in 1557 for weighing gold, silver, silk and other valuable commodities. And while the apothecary and jeweler pay honor to Troves with their balance scales, the epicure prizes this city as a place which exports exceptionally fine snails and dressed pork."

HIG REAL ESTATE MAN DEAD

Charles H. McKnight, 50, of Springfield, developed many Residential Districts in That City

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 7.—Charles H. McKnight, aged 50 years, one of the men most prominently interested in the development of residential districts in this city, died in his home, 738 State street, shortly after 9 o'clock last night after a short illness with pneumonia. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Clara Louisa (Fuller) McKnight, whom he married May 4, 1892; a son, Edward Fuller McKnight, and a brother, Robert McKnight of Marston, Tex.

Mr. McKnight was born in Springfield and has always lived here. He was first associated with his father, John D. McKnight, in the development of the residential district between St. James avenue and State street, and in later years was associated with the Mutual Investment company in the development of the Forest Park section. It is estimated that fully 2000 residences were built on land which he was interested in developing. He was a member of the Navy and Winthrop clubs and a Mason. He was also an enthusiastic fisherman and hunter, making yearly trips to Maine.

GETTING THINGS DONE

A sense of responsibility is good for cities as for individuals, and one does not learn how to get out of trouble until he has once been into it. If a great many things await action, the longer we delay over them and hem and haw, the harder do they seem. The way to accomplish things is to look ahead, map out what must be done and then get right into it.

Lowell is doing this at the present time to an almost unprecedented extent. Not in recent years have so many important projects been under way at one time. Some are only in their initial stage and some have progressed to a reasonable extent, but apparent delays can be satisfactorily explained. Moreover, practically everything that is being done on a large scale has the unanimous support of the public and there is now a healthy interest in our civic affairs.

It surely looks like progress to one who in a short walk goes by the cleared site of the new high school to be, the progressing Dummer street extension and the new bridge at Pawtucketville. The bridge work is getting well under way, the buildings across from city hall are rapidly disappearing and work will be started on the foundations of the high school in a short time. Moreover plans for a so-called contagious hospital are being perfected and Mayor O'Donnell is striving to get the co-operation of the county, with the tacit approval of the state board of health.

As plans on these three or four large projects develop, the Lowell public will see the value of looking at municipal affairs in a broad way removed from petty bickerings. In the early stages of the bridge agitation, the high school, the contagious hospital and other plans, political wrangles and factional disagreements prevented action and if this spirit kept up we should be talking forever and getting nothing accomplished. If things must be done it is a pretty good plan to find a way to do them as soon as possible—with reasonable regard for economy, to be sure—and then get busy on the practical work.

There is one side to the question that may be more or less disconcerting and that has to do with the cost. To build schools and bridges and hospitals or to extend streets through congested areas takes money, but if the people get full value for what they spend, they will not complain. We have learned to our cost that the cry of economy is not always sincere or wise and that a policy of doing nothing and postponing every important improvement demanded may ultimately be a very costly policy for the city.

By the time the present plans are perfected and the different projects completed we will have so got the habit of doing things that the people may look for something else to do. We will not have to look long to find channels for the expenditure of energy. There still remains a pretty considerable program of improvement for the future, including a public hall, school improvements, river bank and other park developments and all the nice things that we talk about when we get ambitious or when we indulge in pipe dreams. Some day they will all be a reality and then Lowell will have reason to challenge the best city of our size and type in New England.

ADJOURNMENT POSTPONED

It is not without humor that most Americans regard the closing of a session of congress with relief, but such seems to be the case. Judging from the comments in the papers, it has been especially the case during the delicate controversies of the present administration, for congress did not always support the president as strongly as it might have, and it has little reason to feel elated over the issues on which it retarded his policies. Particularly is this true of the republicans who made anything but a creditable showing at the time of the submarine showdown.

The present session shows every indication of dragging on into October, though it was thought some time ago that it might adjourn in June or in July at the latest. Controversies have since developed on some of the most important bills, and a compromise is not looked for until they have run their course in the usual way.

The federal child labor bill is one bone of contention, it being most distasteful to some of the southern senators and congressmen. It is pretty sure to pass but it will be blocked at every turn. Some of those who are opposed declare that the measure is unconstitutional, but they scarcely believe what they say in this respect. A fight has also developed on the army and navy bill, but not on party lines. The "small navy" advocates have representatives of both parties but though they are at variance with the overwhelming sentiment of the country they can do considerable blocking of legislation and prolong the session. The revenue bill is also a matter of hesitation and controversy it being predicted that the bill will have to be recast before it can secure a majority.

It is more than probable that a little partisan trickery is behind some of the present congressional moves.

but President Wilson seems to hold the advantage. His hold on congress has always been acknowledged and it cannot be proved that he has at any time abused it. His strength will be seen in the present situation if the session is unnecessarily prolonged.

REFUSING TO BITE

The result of the progressive conference at Indianapolis may be grudgingly admitted a victory for President Wilson in some quarters, but it cannot surely be regarded as a victory for Mr. Hughes. If Roosevelt progressives, they would have had to ratify the action of the leader as a matter of course, but they came out strongly against himing up with any candidate, leaving it to individuals to support whom they choose. Their action was in effect a strong repudiation of the Roosevelt devotion of progressive principles and they specifically determined to keep their organization in all states where such is possible. Since by following Roosevelt in his flop to the republicans they would automatically destroy the progressive party, they have taken action against Roosevelt and his decision. The election will show that many if not most progressives will show their disapproval of Roosevelt's action in a more practical way. As seen by Chairman McCormick of the democratic national committee: "That the progressives by their action in Indianapolis showed a leaning towards President Wilson and not for Charles E. Hughes, is the only conclusion that can be reached. The meeting proved that the progressives decline to have a halter put on them and that they will not be led into the republican ranks."

CROP OF CANDIDATES

From the preliminary announcements and the intimations of buzzing booms it is evident that the recent redistricting of this region has not discouraged growing political ambitions. The crop of local candidates for state office shall be as large as ever and it shall be of much the same quality as before. There side by side is the young aspirant who suffers from a malady that he diagnoses as the public office itch, and the seasoned runner who is forever active in political marathons but who never managed to get there. Seems too bad in a way that with the reorganization of the district we could not have a little rearrangement and repression of political material. If we could eliminate the chronic office seeker of no special ability and educate all parties to pick out their best material, Lowell might be better served in the legislature in the future than it has in the past—though in all fairness it must be admitted that Lowell's average in the legislature is fit to compare with that of most Massachusetts cities. It is a healthy sign that the weakest aspirants for office now generally poll the smallest number of votes. Let us hope that the standard of public employe will be higher under the new system than ever before.

WHERE OH WHERE?

Among the departed glories, never, alas, to return, is the political campaign of other days when the candidate who could muster up the largest torchlight parade, supply sensational stunts, furnish doughnuts and coffee in abundance and amuse the people to the greatest extent ran a good chance of landing the job. In those days, parade announcements sometimes attracted as many people from the surrounding country as the annual circus and the parade itself with banners and bands and red fire was a great American institution. Sometimes there was a speech and sometimes there wasn't, but it never was on the principles of the campaign and really nobody cared. So long as the candidate could tell funny stories and call his opponent names he got by. There has been a great change indeed and though our campaigns now are more prosaic, they are more sensible. We now ask Mr. Hughes or Mr. McCall or Mr. Fitzgerald, as the case may be, to talk on the issues and the authorities keep tabs on campaign expenses. Campaigners are not so picturesque as formerly, but they are more intelligent.

LOST IN WOODS

This year there have been many sad cases of people getting lost in the woods, some of whom have been found in an exhausted condition and some of whom have died. There have also been cases of murder and attack of defenseless women and taken all together it behooves those who contemplate going in the woods to seek a companion before they wander far from home. No matter how well one may know the country it is very easy to get lost, and a night spent wandering in woods and swamps is not a pleasant experience. Children especially going for berries or for any purpose should not go alone, as unfortunately there are many dangers which the daily papers reveal only too plainly. There is no rarer delight than a day spent gathering blueberries or merely enjoying the freedom of the open, but even there, it is not well to disregard the principles of "safety first."

BLOCKING FIRE ESCAPES

In some of the large tenement buildings of this city one may observe that the blocking of fire escapes by clothing and kitchen utensils is quite common. In some cases part of the fire escape is converted into a playground for children and partitioned off by a chair or some other obstruction. This is a bad practice and it should not be allowed as it would be easy for the habit to develop until fire escapes would be more of a hindrance than a help in case of fire. In New York the abuse became so pronounced that the tenement house commissioner worked for the reduction of the fine from $10 to $2 in order that the courts might impose it on offenders. Those who use fire escapes for extraneous purposes do not offend maliciously, but for their own good and the good of the city they should be made to do otherwise.

SEEN AND HEARD

Charlie Morse would take it awfully to heart if Lowell Putnam should fail of re-election this fall.

Should Girls Propose?

"Yes," said the old matron, with a gleam in his eye. "I've always looked at it that way. Marriage is a business, when the little ones come it's multiplication; when dissolution comes up to cloud the horizon of their happiness, it's division; and when the final parting comes it's subtraction!"

"And how about divorce?" asked the listener.

"Oh, that would come under the denomination of fractions!"

Keep Off the Grass

There were a very saving old couple, and as the result they had a beautifully furnished house.

One day the old woman missed her husband.

"Joseph, where are you?" she called out.

"I'm resting in the parlor," came the reply.

"What, on the sofa?" cried the old woman, horrified.

"Oh, on the floor."

"Not on that grand carpet!" came in tones of anguish.

"No, I've rolled it up!"

Got to Hither Deep

During a social evening a lady in Brookline sang to the guests. Her voice was so poor and her knowledge of music so slight that one of the guests turned to a meek looking little man sitting at his side and said:

"How awful! Who can she be?"

"That," replied the man addressed, "is my wife."

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" stammered the other. "She's really a—I know she'd sing beautifully if she made a better selection of her music. Who do you suppose wrote that song?"

"I am the author of that song," replied the meek looking little man.

Gathering Fish Eggs

Latest reports from the government hatchery on Ten-pound Island, in Gloucester harbor, say that in the future the fish will not be stripped of their eggs by hand. This change is made possible by the erection, at a cost of $300, of a concrete retaining basin for brood fishes. Their eggs, as discharged, float to the surface and are carried by a current into a fume and deposited on screens. An automatic machine operation then separates the work of the spawn takers, who have had to handle the fish in all weathers.

The new method, which has been tested at Woods Hole, is cheaper than

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of medicine."

"I was worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach."

"I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it."

"I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."

—Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

My dear woman, we beg of you to take sensible advice and try this medicine before it is too late.

Undying Fame for Joe
"Joe" Legare of Lowell, well known in this city where he made many friends during the days when he served as secretary of Congressmen Butler, Ames when that gentleman had the honor of serving this city as well as Lowell—it being then the Lowell-Lawrence district in congress, is likely to gain undying fame. He has refused, yes, actually refused, an appointment to a state board. He was taken by surprise the other day by a letter from Gov. McCall, in a pointed manner as a member of the board of trustees of the state infirmary and state farm. Mr. Legare didn't want the job and didn't let it go to the governor had to appoint some one else.—Lawrence Telegram.

If He Had a Million
Two archers were playing on the curbing, and evidently engaged in some make-believe game, for one of them was heard to say to the other:

"If you had a million dollars—no, a thousand million dollars—so you could have anything you want, what would you take first?"

"The other seemed unable to decide. Finally he shook his head. It was too much for him."

"But if you had a thousand million dollars and could have anything, what would you buy to eat?" urged the companion.

"The little fellow's eye then caught sight of the fruitstand nearby, and an enlightened smile stole over his thought-clouded face."

"I'd buy that whole box of apples," he said quickly, "and I'd give you half, 'cause I could get some more when they were gone."

He Didn't Advertise
During a convention of ad writers held recently some one told the following story:

A man entered a shop one cold day and bought a woolen muffler. When he opened the muffler he found inside the photograph of a beautiful girl with a smile in her eyes.

"If you are single, please write to me," name and address followed, and the man smiled. He was single. He placed the photo on his library table. In a week he had fallen in love with the picture of the beautiful girl. So he wrote to her.

"A week passed, during which the bachelor was in a fever of impatience. Finally he received this terrible blow in the shape of a letter from the girl:

"Dear Sir: The Mary Jones to whom you wrote was my grandmother. She died nine years ago, aged 87 years. Yours truly,"

Upon investigating this strange case the broken hearted bachelor discovered that he had purchased the muffler from a dealer who did not advertise.—Woonsocket Evening Call.

"Cling Fast to Hope"
Who thinks tomorrow will not bring him more Than the past days and years has passed before. Who thinks that joy is false and love a cheat, That since some things are bitter, none are sweet, Has cast away—or lost—his kindest friend; Hopes, which all men should cherish to Cling fast to hope! What though she show to thee Visions of gladness which shall never be, Wouldst thou tear down the drapery of life, Because the sun shows heights thou canst not scale? Wouldst thou tear down the drapery of life, Because it hides the rough and jagged walls? Man of the downcast face, lift up thine Look on the world which all around thee lies. To left and right full many a patch Thou'lt see Whose long stage was grief and misery, And yet which ended in the ways of ease, Leading along cool brooks, 'mid flowers and trees. Remember this: That in a life whose sun Includes both joy and sorrow, there must come a time when sorrow, having spent his all, Of wrath upon thy head, must then let fall His shattered sword, and give unwilling place To joy, who follows him with shining face. So when the end approaching, thou Over the lights and shadows of thy track, And by the clear rays of the setting sun Seest again what blessings thou has lost or won, Then thou canst lift thy voice and raise thine eyes, And thank the God above thee in the That in the darkness where thou oft didst grope There was not lost thy greatest treasure, hope. —D. M. Gnetgius, in New York Sun.

SAVED THEIR LIVES
But for the presence of mind and prompt action of Mrs. R. P. Kidder of 10 Hastings street, this city, two young men would probably have been drowned at Baptist pond in South Lowell yesterday afternoon.

The young men were racing in canoes when one of the boats overturned and the occupant of the other canoe went to the rescue but apparently neither was a strong swimmer and they were in an exhausted condition when Mrs. Kidder reached them.

Noting the predicament in which the young men were, she entered a boat and rowed to the spot where the two were struggling in the water and unassisted succeeded in bringing them into her boat. Neither young man was any the worse for the dip in the water.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The republican congressional campaign for Maine is about to get under way. The speakers' bureau has prepared a list of those who will address the Maine voters in their interest, and 35 are to go to the Pine Tree state for the September campaign. Among these are ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft. The latter has not definitely consented, but his promise is understood to be made unofficially. The two ex-presidents have not been slated on the Maine platform as yet, but there is no telling what the campaign will develop.

The speaking campaign will begin the latter part of August. About 500 dates have been arranged for the 35 speakers, covering almost every section of the state.

Among the other speakers of national note slated for the Maine campaign are Senators Lodge and Weeks of Massachusetts, ex-Senator Burton of Ohio, Senator Sherman of Illinois and Senator Borah of Idaho. The list also includes ex-Sec. of the Treasury Shaw.

About 29 congressmen of more than local reputation have been corralled by the speakers' bureau for Maine service. Among these are Simeon D. Fess of Ohio and George Edmund Foss of Illinois.

The republican managers indicate that they are going to strain every effort to carry the Maine election. The speakers' bureau for the republican congressional committee is directed by Congressman Slemo, the only republican congressman from Virginia. He has arranged the campaigns for several other states, among them being Nebraska, Maryland and Delaware.

RISE OF PRINT PAPER
FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION WANTS INFORMATION FROM NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Publishers of newspapers, dailies, weeklies, monthlies, quarterlies or any other regularly published paper which requires print paper, and also job printers, who have been affected by the steadily increasing price of print paper, are being urged to supply information to Chairman Hurley of the federal trade commission at Washington before Aug. 15.

Chairman Hurley wants all newspaper men to prepare immediately answers to the schedule of questions bearing on paper supplies, prices and trade troubles. J. H. Zerby, chairman of the white paper committee of the National Editorial Association, dealing with the price of print paper, is calling upon every publisher in the country to file answers. There are so many publishers that Mr. Zerby is afraid that it will be impossible in the short time available to communicate directly with all of them.

It is important that the answers be supplied immediately for use by Chairman Hurley and Chairman Zerby in connection with the investigation now in progress in Washington, at which charges have been made against the paper manufacturers by publishers who have been called upon to testify.

By a general response of publishers and consumers of print paper it is believed that extremely valuable information will be obtained by the committee looking out for the interests of the publishers.

Answers to the schedule of questions should be delivered to Judge Hurley at Washington or J. H. Zerby, chairman of the white paper committee of the National Editorial Association at Pottsville, Penn., by Aug. 15—positively not later than Aug. 21.

Publishers who find they are unable to answer all the questions are requested to answer those they can. Chairman Hurley pledges absolute secrecy for all information thus obtained. The request applies to publishers of all papers, whether or not they are subscribers to news services.

The importance of answering the questions is apparent from the fact that the price of print paper has been steadily increasing for months, and publishers have experienced great difficulty in getting paper even at the advanced prices. The tremendous increase has necessitated newspapers in New York and other places reducing the size of their papers, the number of pages and adopting a no-return policy.

Newspapers in some of the larger cities have found it imperative to increase the price of their paper from 1 to 2 cents on account of the excessive paper cost.

PUT IT UP TO CONGRESS
Suffrage Association Submits Three Direct Questions for Answer to Congress Members

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—In shaping plans for their campaign for passage of a federal woman suffrage amendment through the next congress, the National Woman's Suffrage association already has begun a canvass of the attitude of candidates for the senate and house of representatives.

The association's headquarters here announced last night that it had submitted to each nominee for congress the following questions:

"Are you in favor of woman suffrage?"

"If elected will you vote in congress to submit to the states a federal amendment to enfranchise the women of this country?"

"If appointed on a committee in whose jurisdiction such an amendment should fall, will you do all in your power to expedite the passage of such a measure?"

SIXTH REGIMENT

Goes Into Camp—Begins Tour of Duty at Edgartown

The members of Companies C and K, Sixth Infantry of this city, left yesterday for Edgartown, where for the next two weeks they will hold their encampment with other companies of the Sixth. The militiamen went by special train, which was composed of ten coaches, leaving Lowell between 6 and 7 o'clock and headed for New Bedford. En route the special train picked up Company E of Framingham and Company I of Concord. The trip to the White city was a most pleasant one.

After leaving the train at New Bedford the "soldiers" enjoyed a picturesque rail across Buzzard's Bay and the sound to Edgartown on Martha's Vineyard, this being followed by a three-mile hike to the site selected for the encampment.

The camp is beautifully located and the site has been prepared by Capt. Henry H. Wheeler, quartermaster. The whole camp was piped for water, the tents of headquarters and those of the officers erected, also the cook houses, and it took but a little time for the cooks to get to work.

Tomorrow morning the regiment will go on regular field rations and Capt. Lewis C. Hunton, who is handling the commissary, has the complete food supply on hand with the exception of fresh beef, which will arrive every day.

The men will have fresh bread every day, the field oven being in full working order under Lieut. Charles J. Duffy.

The location of the camp gives ample facilities for sea bathing and Capt. Wheeler has also established shower baths.

The horses, which have been brought down for the use of the officers, are a good looking lot of animals and it is hoped that they will be of some use to the men. As they did on the voyage over to the island, they were examined by Lieut. A. W. May, veterinary surgeon.

Both at New Bedford and at Edgartown there was a large crowd of spectators to welcome the troops and a few "joke" men fired at the steamer came out of New Bedford harbor.

Sixth Regiment Band

The Sixth Regiment band of this city, the only band which has the distinction of having taken part in an outdoor concert, will give a band concert at the direction of Capt. Walter R. Jones and Regimental Adjutant James Powers, both of this city, who have outlined the following program:

Relay race for first prize cup and medals to the men of the winning team, and umbrellas for the men of the team finishing second; baseball series for a trophy cup; rescue race for two prize cups and two medals; swimming race for a smoking set and a cigar stand; 220 yard dash for a cup and an umbrella; running broad jump for a wrist watch and a gold medal; equipment race for a cup and a bronze bob and a tug of war for a cup and three medals. Other events will include the 100 yard dash, 440 yard run, shot put, broad jump and centipede race.

The roster of the regiment is as follows:

Lieut. Col. Herbert W. Damon commanding. Maj. William H. Dolan, Capt. William G. Pond, and Capt. James M. Greig.

Staff: First Lieut. J. J. Powers, acting adjutant; Capt. James Glass, medical department; Capt. William F. Desautel, chaplain; Capt. Lewis C. Hunton, Q.D.; Capt. James H. Keough.

Battalion adjutants: First Lieut. Oscar W. Fosberg, Second Lieut. Edgar B. Hawkes, Second Lieut. George F. Seamon.

Battalion quartermasters and commissaries: Second Lieut. Harrie C.

CELEBRATED THE FOURTH

STORY OF HOW AMERICANS, IN SPITE OF MANY OBSTACLES, OBSERVED THE DAY

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 29 (Correspondence)—Americans who arrived in Scandinavia recently on the steamer Bergensfjord told of a decidedly unique celebration of the Fourth of July on board that vessel.

On the third of July the Bergensfjord, a Norwegian ship, was "captured" by a British cruiser and escorted into Kirkwall for the customary examination of cargo and passengers.

Despite the fact that they were to be "captives" over the Fourth in a British harbor, the passengers decided to hold a fitting celebration and renew the Declaration of Independence.

All the neutrals on board decided to join the Americans and Capt. Irgens of the Bergensfjord appointed a committee to arrange everything.

The hour set for the ceremonies was 11 o'clock the morning of the Fourth. It was found at that time, however, that the British authorities, required the presence of all first class passengers, and the reading of the Declaration was postponed until 3 o'clock.

At this hour the ceremonies were begun anew. "America" was sung, a short prayer was offered and then Captain Irgens arose.

"I regret it very much," he announced, "but the Declaration of Independence must again be postponed, as the British authorities require the presence of the second class passengers in their dining room."

At 3 o'clock the ship's company assembled again to hear proclaimed the principles of a free and independent people. But again Capt. Irgens arose.

"I regret again to have to announce a further postponement of the Declaration of Independence, but the British authorities, who did not recognize the Fourth of July as a holiday, say they must have the third class passengers in their dining room at once."

Forty-five minutes later the British authorities had concluded their examination of the neutrals and this time the Declaration was read amid great enthusiasm.

The Bergensfjord, however, and the Americans aboard her, remained in "captivity" until the afternoon of the fifth.

The three American passengers on the Bergensfjord were Lieut. P. Koster of Philadelphia, a veterinary surgeon; Phil Edwards of Jersey City and James Higgins of Cincinnati.

CHASED BY SUBMARINES

AND DROVE OFF SUBMERSIBLES —THREE AMERICANS ABOARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Italian steamship Re d'Italia, with three American passengers on board, from Genoa, Italy, was chased for seven hours by three submarines while in the Mediterranean and was saved from capture or destruction by the report of the ship's master, Capt. Amadeo Pincetti, on the arrival of the ship here yesterday.

The captain said he believed one of the submarines was hit by one of the shots fired, although his only evidence was the appearance of the column of water which rose in the air where the Italian fired.

No shots were fired at the Re d'Italia, Capt. Pincetti said. The submarines were discovered by the lookout at 9:30 a. m. on July 23, when the vessel was about 200 miles from Genoa midway between the Balearic Islands and the island of Corsica. They were then one and one-half miles distant.

Capt. Pincetti ordered the speed of his ship increased to her full capacity, about 12 knots an hour. Then he summoned the crew of naval gunners on board and took personal command of them.

"About 9:45 the submarines were slightly abreast on the starboard quarter, trailing the line," Capt. Pincetti said. "Seeing that they were chasing us, I ordered the gunners to open fire. The third shot, I believe, took effect, as the spot of water that followed the falling of the shell was much different from that caused by the preceding shots. It was much heavier and apparently impregnated with smoke or oil. At any rate, from that time on, only two periscopes were to be seen."

"The chase continued until 4:30 that afternoon, the boats not getting any closer to us nor showing themselves. We kept on firing at them, in all 15 shots, from our two 3-inch naval guns."

"After our third shot the submarines evidently tried to get in a position to launch a torpedo, but were, no doubt, afraid to come to the surface to get better speed because of our guns. No flag was seen and there was no way to determine their nationality, but their wake as seen through glasses indicated that they were big ones."

The three American passengers on the Re d'Italia were Lieut. P. Koster of Philadelphia, a veterinary surgeon; Phil Edwards of Jersey City and James Higgins of Cincinnati.

SUNDAY'S AUTO DEATHS

FIVE PERSONS WERE KILLED AND MANY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Five persons were killed in yesterday's auto accidents. They were: Thomas MacLellan, 79, of Chattanooga, Tenn., struck by car at Manchester street, and Mrs. Kee, mother of Mrs. George W. Taylor of 133 Clark street, both of whom were seriously injured, and Mrs. Fitzgerald, 22, of 42 Hanson street, Salem, swept from running board of street car in Salem.

Amelio Guerra, 23, Sherborn, thrown from motorcycle in Framingham.

James McCann, 22, of 42 Hanson street, Salem, swept from running board of street car in Salem.

WINTHROP, Aug. 7.—When a woman's motor car, yesterday, a light touring car containing six persons, was knocked down and ran over a mother and daughter, raced through an open lot for several feet and finally turned over into a pit, a drop of about 15 feet.

This was Winthrop's second automobile accident in less than 24 hours, in which the two narrow escapes from death. In addition to those run down, everyone of the occupants of the automobile was more or less seriously hurt. The injured were:

Mrs. Ellen Barron, aged 41, of 5 Myrtle avenue, broken leg and abrasions.

Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, aged 40, of 450 Revere street, crushed chest and possible internal injuries.

Miss Katherine Fitzgerald, aged 15, of 150 Revere street, abrasions to the body, face, arms and legs.

Miss Helen Barron, aged 9, of 5 Myrtle avenue, abrasions to the head and body.

Miss Geraldine Barron, aged 11, of 100 Locust street, severe injuries to the back, head and legs.

Miss Mary G. Fitzpatrick, aged 35, of 100 Locust street, bruises to the legs and body and nervous shock.

Miss Anna Devereux, aged 36, of 28 Beach road, local sprain of the back and abrasions to legs and arms.

Miss Margaret Catty, aged 31, of 54 Locust street, shock and possible internal injuries.

Lost Control of Machine

The accident happened at the corner of Chatham and Revere streets. A touring car, owned by Fred Cook, 28 Beach road and operated by his daughter, Miss Anna Devereux, came along Crest avenue at a moderate speed and turned sharply into Revere street to go up by Fort Banks.

It ran with Miss Devereux and Geraldine Barron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Barron. Seated in the rear were Miss Fitzpatrick, Miss Catty, Mrs. Barron and her daughter, Helen Barron.

Walking on the farther sidewalk on Revere street, coming from church, was Mrs. Fitzgerald and her 15-year-old daughter, Katherine.

Miss Devereux, who was being driven in an automobile only a short while, the police say, seemed to become unnerved by their presence and lost control of the machine.

Runs Over Girl, Lands in Cellar

Before she could regain control the car ran up on the sidewalk. One of the forward mudguards struck Mrs. Fitzgerald in the chest and knocked her down. Katherine was bowled over, the car passing over her body.

With the occupants of the runaway machine screaming for help, the car rolled unchecked over the field and turned end over end into the cellar of the old Argyle stable, which was destroyed by fire several years ago.

Miss Devereux and the Barron and Barron girls were pinned beneath it. Miss Fitzpatrick was thrown head first through the windshield, landing some distance from where the car fell. Mrs. Barron and Miss Catty tried to jump, but both fell into the cellar.

While still pinned beneath the machine, Miss Devereux made a brave but futile attempt to raise it off the Barron girl, who was bleeding freely from a score of wounds on her head and body and legs. The Barron girl, though beneath the car, was only slightly hurt.

The crash and screams of the frightened women were heard all over the Highlands.

John H. Flynn, assistant clerk of the supreme court, who lives at 15 Crest avenue, saw the accident from his home and, without waiting to see what happened, put in an emergency call for doctors and the police. Nelson E. Hayden, who lives nearby, and Dr. J. H. Gooding of Boston, who was passing in his automobile, were among the first to reach the injured women.

With Edward Fox of Sagamore avenue they raised the car and dragged out Miss Devereux, who was very hysterical and the Barron and Barron girls. Others assisted Mrs. Barron.

Hurried to Hospital

Once released, Miss Devereux, though badly bruised, attended to Miss Fitzpatrick and Miss Catty, both of whom were badly bruised.

Dr. B. H. Metcalf, Dr. Raymond Parker, Dr. Charles F. Mahoney and Dr. William J. McDonald arrived quickly in automobiles. Winthrop has no such thing as an ambulance, hence the injured were placed in the physicians' cars and taken to the Metcalf hospital about a mile and half across the town.

When they arrived Dr. Edward J. Grainger and Dr. Norman St. George were waiting with Rev. John J. O'Brien of the Church of St. John the Evangelist. It was found that Mrs. Barron had a fracture of the left leg and was covered from head to foot with bruises.

Fully 15 stitches were required to close the several wounds on the arms and legs of the Barron girl, who, according to her father, was released from the hospital only a short while ago after having a needle extracted from her body.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was badly hurt about the chest, and it is feared she is suffering from internal injuries. Her daughter Katherine was cut about the body, face, arms and legs. Miss Devereux, Miss Catty, Miss Fitzpatrick and the Barron girl, who suffered similar injuries, were allowed to go home. The automobile was badly damaged. Late last night Mrs. Barron, Miss Barron and Mrs. Fitzgerald were resting comfortably at the hospital, and unless something unforeseen develops, the physicians say, they will all recover.

WOMAN HURT IN WOBURN

Mrs. Kee, Mother of Mrs. George W. Taylor of Chelsea Taken to Hospital in Serious Condition

WOBURN, Aug. 7.—In a collision between two autos on Cambridge street yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kee, mother of Mrs. George W. Taylor of 133 Clark street, Chelsea, was seriously injured. It was reported at Choate Memorial hospital that she was still unconscious.

One of the autos involved was owned and operated by Lewis K. Wait of 104 Parker street, Somerville; the other was driven by George W. Taylor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Taylor and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kee.

Mrs. Kee was thrown from the auto by the shock, suffering concussion of the brain, if not more serious injuries. No one else was hurt. The Taylor auto was badly damaged.

THE GREEK COMMUNITY

OFFICERS OF GREEK COMMUNITY TO BE ELECTED BY VOTERS INSTEAD OF DIRECTORS

A lively meeting of the members of the local Greek community was held in Associate hall yesterday afternoon with President George Zeppos in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, including the passing of a vote to hold a general election on Labor day, and several changes in the by-laws of the community.

The meeting was opened at 1 o'clock with a large attendance, only registered voters being admitted. It was voted to have the various officers of the community elected by the voters instead of by the directors, and in order to bring peace in the community it was also voted to hold a general election of officers on Labor day. It was also voted that each voter of the community shall after the present year pay dues of 25 cents a month, and with the idea of securing a collection of such dues, a collector will be appointed at a wage of $15 a week. Any person who is registered as a voter and who fails to pay his dues six months in succession will be declared ineligible to further membership.

POLICE COURT CASES

SIWALK OBSTRUCTION CASE DISMISSED—YOUNG GIRL CHARGED WITH BEING A STUBBORN CHILD

William F. Leinbas was arraigned before Judge John J. Pickman in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with obstructing a sidewalk in Middlesex street, but after the court heard the testimony the defendant was found not guilty and discharged. J. Joseph Hennessy appeared for Leinbas.

Patrolman Cornelius F. O'Sullivan testified that Leinbas and four other young men were standing in Middlesex street near the railroad station about 2:10 o'clock Saturday night. He ordered them to move along and when four of them started down the street Leinbas said to them, "Wait a minute." When he refused to go the second time he was told the officer arrested him.

Leinbas and three other witnesses said they had been in a furnishing store and made a purchase and Leinbas was about to re-enter to purchase a pair of socks when the officer arrested him.

Stubborn Child

Margaret Tully was charged with being a stubborn child, her father testifying that he had not seen her since the night before the Fourth until this morning in court. The girl has been living with her sister part of the time, but of late has been rooming out. Disposition of the case was continued until tomorrow morning.
